ANOTHER TRAGEDY ENACTED IN TOWNSHIP

RUSSIA HAS ONLY TWO DAYS TO STATE POLICY

By WEBB MILLER

LONDON, August 25—Whether the most of Europe will again be involved in war was expected to be decided within 48 hours.

Russia has until Friday evening to reply to the Anglo-Italian note demanding modification of its peace terms to Poland. Premier Lloyd George informed the Bolsheviks through Arthur Balfour, Lord President of the Council, that unless a satisfactory reply is forthcoming within a time limit Great Britain will change her policy toward Russia.

In the event of a resumption of hostilities on a major scale Germany may become partially involved since the sentiment of the German population is mostly pro-Russian. Calls for volunteers have been made in east Prussia to aid the Reds according to advices here. The Bolshevik representatives Kamenoff and Karim have obtained their passports and expect to leave Friday in the event the government fails to accede to Poland's demands. The government contends that Lloyd George is fully informed regarding the Bolshevik demands on Poland.

If the Bolsheviks refuse to modify their terms as demanded by the Allies the military plans of the latter will be put into immediate effect. The British navy is understood to be ready to establish a blockade in 12 hours.

Reports from various sources today revealed the magnitude of the Russian defeat in Poland. At no point on the 500 mile battle front have the Reds been able to make a substantial stand. In addition to the 90,000 troops already captured Warsaw advices today said that the Red army of 50,000 in the Mova region are negotiating for surrender.

INCREASED FARES TOMORROW

WASHINGTON, August 25—The increased freight and passenger rates will go into effect at midnight tonight. Higher rates for passenger and freight on the Great Lakes and coastwise vessels may go into effect at the same time if they wish. These rates were granted by the Shipping Board yesterday.

ANTI-SUFFRAGE LEADERS SEEK TO TIE HANDS OF COLBY

WASHINGTON, August 25—The anti-suffrage fight against the 19th amendment was transferred to Washington today when a suit to enjoin Secretary of State Colby from proclaiming the amendment was filed in the District of Columbia Supreme Court today.

ITALIAN MISS, 18, KIDNAPPED BY 3 MEN IN AUTOCAR

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 25—A mother and sister are frantically urging the police to trace Josephine Cataline, aged 18, they only support, and her three abductors who this morning forced her into an automobile and were lost in the morning mist. Josephine on her way to work was seized by a man alleged to be an Italian admirer. A cloth was wrapped around her head to stifle her cries and she was put in the car in the sight of witnesses. Too startled by the boldness of the kidnapers, the witnesses did not obtain a good description of the car. One Italian, long an admirer of Josephine's, was missing from his room today and an automobile to which he had access is believed to be the kidnappers' automobile. Police say that the youth, long harboring the thought of marriage to Josephine, may have resorted to force to obtain his ambition.

CHARGES BRITAIN IS BEHIND COX CAMPAIGN FUND

CHICAGO, Aug. 25—Great Britain is ready to furnish money to aid in the election of a Democratic President, Congressman Frank Britten, of Illinois alleged in a statement today. Britten's statement, issued from the Republican national headquarters said that the British ambassador had given an "entertainment fund" of $87,500. "This fund found its way to the Democratic National Committee. It will be added to by ten times that amount to elect the new disciple of Wilson's with money rather than with honest issues."

Joseph Miele, his wife and three children, started to walk across the trestle to cut short the distance to a station where she was visiting relations, and when in the middle of it a train came into view and bore down upon them. The man, petrified with shock, stood still in the middle of the tracks and was instantly killed. The children, hanging by their hands to the ties, screamed for their father to jump. The mother leaped into the river and she and the children were

SABBATH SCHOOL WORKERS IN ANNUAL SESSION

Curwensville Is Scene Of Very Enthusiastic And Earnest Christian Workers

CONVENTION SCRIBE REPORTS

The 46th Annual Convention of the Clearfield County Sabbath School Association is being held in the Curwensville Methodist church yesterday and today. There are about 150 delegates in attendance.

The first session was held yesterday afternoon. It was called to order by President S. C. Watts. The devotional exercises were conducted by Dr. Deavor, pastor of the Morrisdale Methodist church.

President Watts delivered the first address of the afternoon and he had some very encouraging facts for us. He reported 141 organized classes in the county, 152 cradle rolls and 20 teacher training classes. He reported a slight increase in membership. We have 28,426 members in the county, an increase of three hundred. The number of church accessions was seven hundred and ten. The largest Sunday school in the county is the First Methodist Sunday School of DuBois with a membership of 1282. The second largest Sunday School in the county is Trinity Methodist Clearfield with a membership of 1120.

The next period was occupied by Dr. Charles W. Brubaker, general secretary of the Sunday Schools of the United Brethren church. Dr. Brubaker possessed a pleasing personality and is a fine talker. His theme was "Trained Officers and Teachers."

The crude product in the Sunday School is the baby. What are we going to make out of that baby? There are three outstanding aims in every Sunday School. First to reach every available person in the community. If the Sunday Schools of North America get busy this fall and put on a campaign of expansion, we will not only win the three million we have lost, but many millions more. The second aim is to reach every person in the Sunday School for Jesus Christ. If you don't win your pupils for Jesus Christ in a few years you won't have a church. The third aim is to train the pupils for effective Christian service.

Only one eighth of the Sunday Schools in North America have a teacher training class. Every public school teacher is required to have a certificate. The task of the Sunday School worker is to build up intensively and extensively. He must know the product that he has to deal with. Every mechanic must learn his trade. The demand is for trained workers in every profession. If it requires trained workers in the world of business and amusement, we ought to be willing to take a little time to train ourselves to do service for the cause of humanity. The trouble is with the most of us we don't know the traits of childhood and youth.

The officer and teacher should know where each pupil belongs and the necessary organization to meet his need. There should be a classification superintendent in every Sunday school.

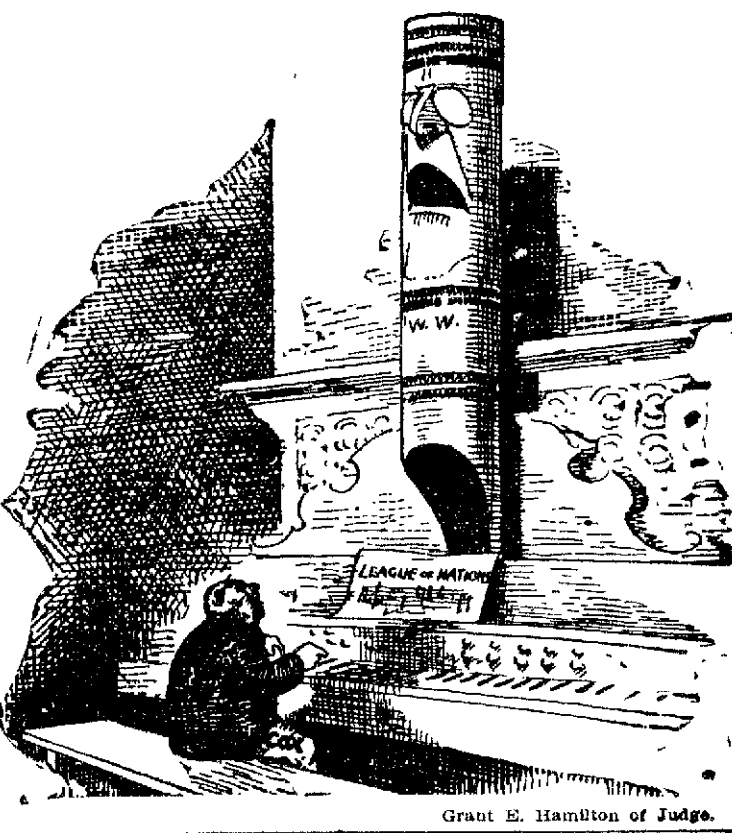

We should have lesson helps suitable for each child at each stage of his development. The nature of the child must determine the nature of the educational process. God gave us the Bible to teach the pupil and there is enough material in it for the pupil at each stage of development. The Sunday School is a working unit and no department works unto itself.

The Sunday School worker should be interested in the business end of the school. We skip over the weak places and emphasize the strong places.

The Sunday School worker should guard carefully his personal habits and appearance. What we say and what we do tell wonderfully with boys and girls. Our boys and girls will not be any better than we are.

The Sunday School worker should

YOU CAN BUY YOUR BASEBALL TICKET BEFORE GOING TO THE PARK TOMORROW

Anticipating a gigantic rush at the gate of the ball park tomorrow afternoon, the C. C. A. have decided to have a ticket booth open over town during the morning and early afternoon for tomorrow's game with the Kane big leaguers.

A ticket seller will be stationed at the Stewart Drug store tomorrow from nine o'clock in the morning until about two o'clock in the afternoon.

Be sure to buy your ticket at this booth so you will not have to wait to get in at the gate.

have poise. He should be active. He should keep sweet. A lot of sour folks are trying to teach children to be sweet. Don't fly off the handle at the slightest provocation. Learn how to call a Sunday School to order. Train your pupils to be generous. Be readers and students. Be loyal to the church of Jesus Christ. Every Sunday School teacher and officer ought to be a church member and a loyal one. There is too much fault-finding with the church. Be a spirit-filled Christian.

We must have a training department in every Sunday school.

President Watts announced a tour of the county by county and state workers beginning with a county conference in Clearfield September 7, 1920.

The last period was occupied by Walter E. Myers of Erie, Superintendent of the adult division Pennsylvania Sunday School Association. He is a strong talker and gave us much to think about. His theme was "Adults, Results."

The test of a movement's worthwhileness is the measure of approval God puts on it. The reason we don't know God so well, is because we haven't purposed in our life to know his will. The seal of God's approval rested on the Adult Bible Class movement. Originally the Sunday School was not a religious school and for a long time it was only a primary department. It finally expanded till we have our four splendid departments.

The test of God's approval on a movement is the measure of use he makes of it. In 1905 at Toronto, we had 5000 enrolled in adult Bible classes and in the Sunday School parade in Philadelphia in 1912, twenty thousand men marched. We now have 13,000 Adult Bible classes in Pennsylvania.

The Adult Bible classes have established many Rescue Missions in the city. They have sent gospel teams out into country places where the Gospel is not heard. What we might do is what we ought to see, rather than what we have done. There isn't any measure we can put on the results of this movement, when it is put at God's disposal.

BERT OGDEN, RESISTING ARREST, SHOT TO DEATH

STATE POLICE SOUGHT TO TAKE HIM INTO CUSTODY ON CHARGE OF PASSING WORTHLESS CHECK IN TOWN

Bert Ogden, residing on the John Carns place on Mt. Zion ridge, was shot to death about 7:45 o'clock last night in an encounter with State Policemen Goldberg and Keogh.

The deceased, who is about 50 years of age and the son of Henry Ogden of Lawrence township, was a life-long resident of this community, having been born and raised near where he met his tragic end. He has been acting strangely for some time past and it is the belief of his friends that he has been deranged for some time.

On Monday Ogden went to the lumber yard of John C. Graham and representing himself to be George W. Brown purchased a quantity of lumber and shingles. He started home with a wagon load of the lumber and scattered the shingles all along the street on the West Side, kicking the last remaining bundle or two off the wagon near Boyce's store.

Mr. Graham was notified and gathered up his shingles. He then went to the Ogden home to see about payment for his lumber and when approached Mr. Ogden gave him a check for $250, signed with the name of "Geo. W. Brown."

Mr. Graham found the check to be phony and secured a warrant for Ogden. The warrant was given to State Policeman Keogh, who saw his man on the street and notified him that he was under arrest. Bert told the officer he would take his team home and appear at the "squire's" office for a hearing. This he failed to do and the warrant was turned over to Trooper Goldberg on Tuesday morning.

When Bert came to town yesterday morning he was arrested by Goldberg. He had his team with him and asked the officer and Mr. Graham to allow him to take his rig home, saying he had some provisions to take to his family, and that as he was unable to furnish bail he would have to go to jail and he desired to fix things up at home before being locked up, but promised to come in and give himself up before evening.

When he failed to return by supper time last evening, Mr. Graham and Officers Goldberg and Keogh went out to his home to arrest him. They arrived at the secluded little farm, about two miles from Clearfield, between 7:30 and 7:45 o'clock. Mr. Graham stopped his car on the public road at the mouth of the lane leading to the farm house and the officers started down toward the house. They met Mrs. Ogden near the barn, about fifty yards above the house and when asked where her husband was she replied that he had left the house a few minutes before. When the officers said they were going down to look for him she begged them not to go near the house. When near the house the officers saw their man run out of the house clad only in a top shirt and juke behind a clump of bushes in the yard. They cautiously approached the hiding place and when they called to Ogden to come out he jumped up and started to run across the field. The troopers called upon him to halt or they would shoot and when he obeyed their command they placed him under arrest. He resisted and struck Keogh when they attempted to handcuff him.

When they returned toward the house Mrs. Ogden appeared in the door with her husband's trousers in her hand and a "feers told him to get his pants on when When he tried to have them taken off him and liceman's blows never feazed him, even though they cut several gashes in his scalp and the black-jack was broken by the force of the blows. Keogh pulled his automatic gun but it jammed and he was unable to shoot. Goldberg also drew his gun, a 38-calibre regular pistol and as the man they were after threw pots and pans and other household articles at them to prevent them from entering the door, Goldberg emptied his gun at the man's legs in an effort to cripple him and make his arrest possible.

When Goldberg came to town at once and notified his captain at Butler, Pa., and then notified the County authorities. District Attorney Arnold sent for County Coroner D. I. Pollum, of DuBois, who arrived at the scene about 12:20 in the afternoon with "Squire John M. Bain.

When Goldberg stopped to reload his gun Ogden, armed with his 38 calibre Winchester rifle, came back into the kitchen and started for the rear door. Keogh in the meantime had run around to the other side of the house in an effort to prevent their man getting away. His gun was still jammed and when he saw Ogden appear with the gun in his hands he called to Goldberg that Ogden was coming out of the door, and had a gun. Goldberg ran around the house and securing a position behind a clump of bushes in the yard not thirty feet from the house, was just in time to halt the maddened man as he came out the path in pursuit of the rapidly retreating Keogh. The latter was making his way toward the barn and when Ogden leveled the rifle at him he threw himself to the ground and crawled on his belly through the grass to get out of range.

When Ogden reached a point opposite the waiting Goldberg and not more than twelve feet distant, Goldberg threw his gun on him and ordered him to throw up his hands. Quick as a flash the demented man turned and fired a shot at the officer, the bullet whizzing through the bushes in close proximity to his head. Goldberg returned the fire and at the second shot Ogden's legs crumpled under him and he tumbled over on his face with the rifle clamped in his hands and expired instantly. The last two shots from Goldberg's revolver both found vital spots, the first one struck Ogden in the small of the back as he quickly turned and the last one pierced his side about ten inches below the shoulder and passing through his breast went through the biceps muscles of his left arm.

Leaving the dead man lying in the yard where he had fallen, the officers sent to town for a physician and Dr. Paul Frantz answered the call. Dr. Frantz, in company with the officers, Corporal Hoffman and Trooper Underwood, who rushed to the scene, Joseph Young, a neighbor, and Mack Myers, of Clearfield, went down to the Ogden home and found Mr. Ogden lying dead where he had fallen.

Trooper Goldberg came to town at once and notified his captain at Butler, Pa., and then notified the County authorities. District Attorney Arnold sent for County Coroner D. I. Pollum, of DuBois, who arrived at the scene about 12:20 in the afternoon with "Squire John M. Bain.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS CURWENSVILLE

A case of diphtheria was reported in the home of Ray Williams yesterday.

Real estate rumor hath it that Owen Jones has purchased the three houses and lot on South Side of Anderson Creek from the Hanna Caldwell estate.

Mrs. J. C. Bloom and daughter Miss Alice will leave today for a point near Pottsville and will spend the next ten days with a daughter and sister, Mrs. Alden, who resides on a farm.

The Crescent ball team won the Monday afternoon game played on the home grounds by a score of 7 to 0.

It has now come to light that some boy using an air gun has broken more than a dozen of lights in rear walls of the High School building. We cannot see where boys find any amusement in the wanton destruction of public property and if names of these boys could be secured, the School Board should force a payment for the broken windows.

Miss Marion Hawkins left today for La Junta, Colorado, where she expects to make her future home with a sister, Mrs. P. G. Gilliam.

Through the courtesy of Charles Bowers head of the Charles Bowers Coal Company, the writer was given a pleasant auto ride to Lumber City and home by way of Grampian. The roads were in fair condition over the whole route, and we certainly enjoyed the trip. Mr. Bowers is interested in coal and mining near Lumber City, more of which will be said later.

Mrs. James Norris left today for Edgar, Neb., where she expects to visit some months with a brother, P. A. Caldwell, after which she will go to Kansas to visit a sister.

The County Sunday School Convention is not the only thing of interest that is going on at the Methodist church this week. Under the plans and management of Dr. J. C. Collins, pastor of that church, a kind of religious institute is being conducted. The object is to impart practical instruction of a most usable character to the membership of the church and especially to the younger portion of the membership. Three central subjects are presented at each session, namely: evangelization, christian stewardship and life work decisions. Rev. W. R. Jones, Lumber City, presents the first; Rev. M. S. Donstine, Clearfield, the second and Rev. C. C. Shively, Clearfield, the third. There were sessions on Monday and Tuesday and there will be two sessions on Thursday and Friday, with possibly a night session on Friday. They are said to be very helpful and enriching to those who attend.

NOTICE TO SOLDIERS

October 8, 1920, has been fixed by the Court and Department of Labor for the hearing for soldiers who have not become citizens. This will be the last hearing for soldiers and all un-naturalized soldiers are requested to appear. You should write the Department of Labor at Pittsburgh, Pa., giving your name and address in order that your name shall be placed on the list for a hearing. Also request the Department to send you a Fact Blank so that you can have some property filled out when you appear at this Court.

HARRY T. MOREY

When not at work on a picture Harry T. Morey is to be found in No. 16 a dressing room which dates back to the early days of his career in the Brooklyn studio of Vitagraph. It was 10 years ago that he occupied this room with Earle Williams. The walls resemble a combination of art museum and rogues' gallery. They are hung with pictures of Morey in various roles ranging from a policeman, his first part; the crook, Joseph Garson of "Within the Law"; to the high financier in "The Gambler." Recently he has added Philip Grey in "The Birth of a Soul" and a detective character in "The Flaming Cloud."

STATE FORESTS TO YIELD OWN SEED

HARRISBURG, Pa., August 23.—

To carry out the extensive forest tree planting program planned for this State by Gifford Pinchot, the chief forester, the Pennsylvania Department of Forestry this fall will collect large quantities of seed from native trees. Previously the seed for the department's nurseries was purchased from commercial collectors in this and foreign countries, but the inferior quality and high cost has convinced the Pennsylvania foresters that they can save money and procure better seed in this State.

As this is a year of heavy seed bearing by most of the desirable forest trees, unusually large quantities of seed will be collected by the foresters. Seed not planted next spring in the four nurseries operated by the department will be held over for planting in the year following, in case it is a lean seed year.

While most of the seed to be collected will grow young forest trees for planting on State and private timber lands, some seed from deciduous trees will produce shade trees for free distribution to cities and boroughs for municipal and educational plantings.

Estimates by John W. Keller, chief of the Bureau of Silviculture, call for the following seeds this fall:

White pine, 600 pounds; pitch pine, 300 pounds; short leaf pine, 50 pounds; red pine, 300 pounds; white spruce, 60 pounds; walnut, 200 bushels; sugar maple, 50 bushels; tulip poplar, 50 pounds; white ash, 50 bushels; Norway maple, 20 pounds; American elm, 50 pounds; red oak, 40 bushels; pin oak, 10 bushels. An effort is being made by Mr. Keller to procure 75 pounds of Japanese larch and 60 pounds of Norway spruce seed from Japan.

Singing Prevents Consumption.

A well-known tenor who was in danger of losing his voice once took on a job in one of the petroleum refining rooms as an ordinary employee, with the result that he was soon able to resume his work on the concert platform. Which reminds us that singing is excellent for consumption. Sometimes it assists as a cure, but it is nearly always effective as a preventive.

Social Arbiters.

Mrs. Dasher—"No, dear, you mustn't invite the Fanlings and the Jeromes for the same evening. The two families don't speak." Dasher—"Tell our over the children, I presume." Mrs. Dasher—"No; their cooks quarreled."—Life.

Difficult to Translate.

A correspondent sends me another story of the difficulties attending the translation of Biblical metaphors into the Eskimo language. "A missionary talking to his converts-to-be had occasion to refer to the 'everlasting crown of glory.' The language did not permit of the precise rendering, so the phrase was turned by the interpreter into the 'beautiful old hat which will never wear out.'—London Observer.

Education in China.

Literacy among the people of South China is greater than among those of the north. Claim is advanced in Canton that nearly all the children of Cantonese parentage, except those of the large boat population, can read; whereas in the north it is unusual to find a family the children of which are all placed in school.

Royalty's Tolling Bell.

Great Tom, the chief bell of St. Paul's cathedral, London, England, is only tolled on the death and the funeral of any of the royal family, or the bishop of London, the dean of St. Paul's, or the lord mayor.

The Only Chance.

Mrs. Johnson—"How does yo' feel dis mawnin', Joe?" Mr. Johnson—"I feels bad—mighty bad! I wish dat Providence would have mussy on me an' take me." Mrs. Johnson—"How can you expect it to ef you won't take de doctor's medicine?"—Puck.

Empire Teaches Ten Commandments.

In almost every part of the British empire provision is made for children to learn the ten commandments in school hours. A New Zealand circular urges that "a knowledge of these laws is in the interests of character building and good citizenship, and is also in aid to good government."

Joint Snake's Tail Is Fragile.

The joint snake, or glass snake, is a harmless lizard of the southern United States, superficially resembling the snake. It is so called from its fragility, the tail easily breaking into small pieces.

BEAVER RAISING IN PENNA. SUCCESS

Raising of beaver in the game preserves of Pennsylvania has been a success according to reports of the State Game Commission and it is hoped to carry out plans made last spring to add from fifty to one hundred of the animals to the fifty or seventy-five now making themselves at home in the woods where once they thrived. The beaver are absolutely protected throughout the year in this State.

The beaver, it is hoped to secure are to come from Canada where most of those used to stock preserves were bought last year. The first beaver placed in State preserves recently were a pair liberated in Potter county by the State Game Commission under arrangements made by the late Dr. Joseph Kalbfus. Previously there had been colonies known in Potter and Monroe counties, whose history could not be ascertained. The distribution of beaver this year included six to the Dauphin county preserve; six to Union county; six to the Coburn district of Centre county; four to the Black Log creek district; six to Ashaph in Tioga county; four to Jamison City in Sullivan county; and six to the Hickory Run district of Luzerne and Carbon. These beaver have all been reported thriving.

Only Partly Afraid.

Robert is quite afraid of a neighbor's dog. Recently he was so absorbed with his playing that he failed to notice the approach of Tige until he was at the child's heels. The boy gave a scream, and when auntie hurried to his rescue he tried to be brave and tremblingly exclaimed: "I isn't afraid on the inside where my heart is, it's just my legs that are afraid."

NOW PAVING CONCRETE

When the State road contractors have more than one thousand feet of concrete laid on the Woodland Blue Ball road, according to A. C. Es, the State inpector on the job.

But tonight and Thursday. Not much change in temperature.

TIROY IN RIO DE JANEIRO

RIO DE JANEIRO, Aug. 25—The British steamer Dryden arrived here last night with Eugene Tiroy, wanted in connection with the New York DeLeon trunk murder. The body of a woman later identified as Mrs. Eugene Tiroy was found in a trunk in New York to which it had been shipped from Detroit. The husband was sought by police for several weeks and was last reported to be in New York. The Dryden left New York for Rio de Janeiro August.

Education.

It is no doubt a very laudable effort in modern teaching, to render as much as possible of what the young are required to learn easy and interesting. But when this principle is pushed to the length of not requiring them to learn anything but what has been made easy and interesting, one of the chief objects of education is sacrificed—John Stuart Mill.

Real Life.
To work, to help and to be helped, to learn sympathetically through suffering, to learn from the people, to reach out through wonder—Benedict's first sight of the world is what it is. It is a world of suffering and of help, of love and of hate, of joy and of sorrow. It is a world of life and death, of hope and of despair. It is a world of beauty and of ugliness, of goodness and of evil. It is a world of mystery and of wonder, of the unknown and of the known. It is a world of the eternal and of the temporal, of the spiritual and of the material. It is a world of the infinite and of the finite, of the vast and of the small. It is a world of the sublime and of the base, of the noble and of the ignoble. It is a world of the divine and of the human, of the holy and of the profane. It is a world of the eternal and of the temporal, of the spiritual and of the material. It is a world of the infinite and of the finite, of the vast and of the small. It is a world of the sublime and of the base, of the noble and of the ignoble. It is a world of the divine and of the human, of the holy and of the profane.

"Oh!
the Fluffiness
of this blanket!"

Such Lightness!
Such Fluffiness!
Such Cleanliness!
—when washed with a

Thor Electric
Washing Machine
With its All-Metal Swinging Wringer

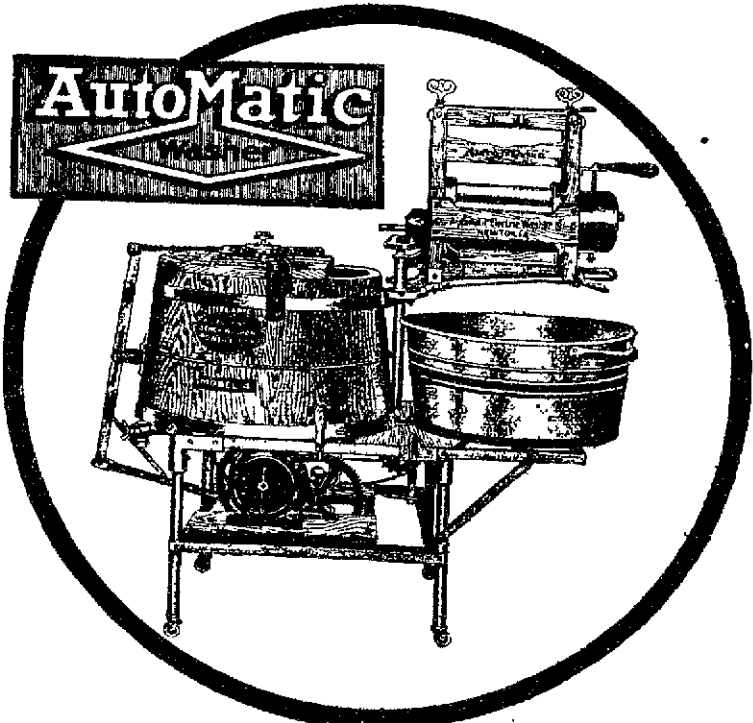

Do you remember the times when you have washed a blanket in the old-fashioned way by hand? Not a very pleasant recollection, is it?

How you wrestled with that wet, soggy mass that seemed to weigh a ton? How you rubbed it a part of the time and swished it about and tried to get it clean when you knew you were not half succeeding.

And when the grilling task was over and you took it off the line—it didn't have the pretty, soft, woolly surface you wanted to see. There was something about it that didn't look quite right—and you wondered if you had actually driven all of the dirt out of it.

What a difference when you use the THOR! No struggle with that exhausting weight—none of that tiring rubbing on the washboard. You just put the blanket into the cylinder, press the button and let the machine do the work. In a little while it is washed perfectly clean.

Because of the elimination of the profits by the discount route, all sales at Dollar Day prices are on a cash basis.

You may have things charged at regular prices.

Here are savings, in the shape of discounts on Electrical labor saving devices that you have been planning to buy for some time. Heed these savings! They will not come again for we cannot say how long.

These discounts are on appliances that will lessen the drudgery of your housework—that will add hours to your life—that will make life worth living.

By sizing up the offerings we make and knowing the appliances on which we give the discounts, you will see that Dollar Day holds much for you here.

Davis PORTABLE ELECTRIC SEWING MACHINES

A Davis Portable Electric Sewing Machine takes the drudgery out of sewing. It's a pleasure to make baby's dresses and your own clothes with it.

It's just as simple as any other sewing machine. The little motor does all the hard work. It's just as simple as any other sewing machine. It's just as simple as any other sewing machine. It's just as simple as any other sewing machine.

When it is not in use it can be folded up in the compact carrying case and put away on a shelf.

It can be operated for a fraction of a cent an hour.

Peculiar Disease.
Arithmomania—the medical name for another disease—is full of interest. In this the patient has the irresistible impulse to count a certain number of things before doing anything. One case recorded is of a girl who had to tap on the edge of the bed nine times before getting into it; a hundred times before brushing her teeth; to knock three times on a window by the side of the door, and a similar number of times on the door itself before she would unlock it.

Small Things of Great Moment.
A piece of twine that fell into the steering gear of a trans-Atlantic liner cost the company $1,000,000 for repairs and delay. A word carelessly dropped will sometimes cost a life of regrets.

COLUMBUS

By LIZZIE M. PEABODY.
(© 1919, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

All His Work Wasted.
A musketry instructor in the north of England had spent a patient hour with a squad of recruits, explaining all about a rifle. He had impressed upon them the names of all the parts and their uses, the magazine, the bolt, the stock, the barrel, and so on. Then, flashing round on one recruit, he asked him how many cartridges he had in his rifle. Quick as thought came the reply: "Seven in 't' tin can and one up 't' spout."

Two days annually are observed in illuminating the graves of the Central cemetery of Vienna. This burying place, while comparatively modern, is regarded as one of the two most beautiful in the world. The illuminating ceremony occurs on Ascension day and on the anniversary of the burning of the Ring theater in 1881, when many fell victims to the flames. When stationary lamp posts of midge size are at the sides of a plot, these are lighted, but those not equipped depend upon the bereaved loved ones who still remain to mourn them to carry lighted candles and torches as a means of illumination.

Alarm Wrist Watch.
With an alarm wrist watch is supplied an electric battery to awaken a sleeper at a designated time by sending a current through and warming a strip of metal on his arm.

"For all his bravery he spoke a bit wistfully, and Isabella suddenly ran away from him, calling breathlessly over her shoulder: "Watch me!" which was needless, as Columbus always watched her when she was near. She disappeared into a tiny hen coop and when she reappeared her eyes danced with delight. "Mother said I might have the egg," she said, "but you shall have it for your birthday present," and thrusting it into his hand she ran hastily into the house. With a pleased smile the boy walked across the yard to the opposite fence, where a kindly neighbor stood.
"A birthday present," he said, and held it up for her to see. With an answering smile she replied: "And I've just broken one which I was to put with a setting of eggs. Wouldn't you like to have me put it with the setting and let Whitey hatch it out for you? Your chicken will be brown, but the others will be white," she added. He hesitated only a second. An egg was very nice to eat, of course, but think of the joy of having a downy chicken for his very own—one he could hold and which would pick from his hand! "I don't mind," was his diffidently spoken answer, but his neighbor read the truth in his sparkling eyes, and placed the egg with the setting.
In due time Whitey paraded proudly with her family and his neighbor agreed to keep Brownie for a while, and Columbus carried to her all the scanty table leavings; also all his spare change for the benefit of Brownie until she began laying eggs.
Then his father began taking an interest in the affair; and built a tiny coop from a packing box. Later, he bought two more hens, and the next spring, having a pronounced case of hen fever, he moved into the country where he had leased a small farm.
That was the beginning of prosperity for the family, and a few years later they were the proud owners of the farm.
All this time Columbus had been so occupied with his work that he had had no time to think of love; but when his twenty-first birthday came and he started out on his usual route with butter, eggs and poultry for sale, he met with an adventure. He was standing looking after an unusually fussy customer when a thin, pale, shabbily dressed girl came hastily from a side street. "I'd like a half dozen fresh eggs," she said. "Mother is ill, and should have the best."
Her eyes were wistful as she asked the price of the smallest fowl in sight, and the sharp eyes of Columbus had noted her sudden shrinking from him as he mentioned it, and that she held more closely her small pocketbook.
"I'll not take the fowl today," she said, and turned to go; and Columbus was really surprised to hear his own voice saying: "Wait, please!" The color in his cheeks deepened as he said: "It's my birthday, and I've so many things to be grateful for! I've always thought that when things are that way a fellow ought to be looking around for some one to give presents to, instead of expecting them."
It was not like him to talk in this way to a stranger, but somehow he couldn't bear to have her go. If she went now he felt that he should never see her again, and so he went on talking.
"A few years ago a pretty little girl gave me my only birthday present which was an egg; and that egg changed the course of the lives of our whole family. Much for the better, too. Would you help me to pay a little of the debt which I owe to her by accepting for your mother a present of the eggs and fowl?"
The girl had been gazing at him intently, and as his pale blue eyes looked eagerly into hers, for an answer, memory whisked them both back to a lovely autumn morning wonderfully like this, when two children talked to each other over an old broken-down fence.
"Columbus!" "Isabella!" they cried out in wonder, and Columbus, still holding her hand and gazing into her eyes, discovered that for him, her face held even a greater charm than it had held in days of old.
Also he suddenly knew why he had never loved. It was simply that no one else had been so well worth loving as Isabella.
And so they were married; and the story their children love best to hear, and the story their mother loves best to tell, is the story of "Columbus and the egg."

No Accounting for Tastes.
The inhabitants of Cochis-China, prefer rotten eggs to fresh ones.

Wonderful Shakespeare.
Among the English authors, Shakespeare has incomparably excelled all others. That noble extravagance of fancy, which he had in so great perfection, thoroughly qualified him to touch the weak, superstitious part of his readers' imagination and made him capable of succeeding where he had nothing to support him besides the strength of his own genius.—Addison.

Nothing Pastime.
We should never speak of anything as pastime, because it means that we are doing the act in question for the sole purpose of squandering time. Every moment of our lives should be devoted to such pursuits as will build up our bodies and minds, our spiritual and material interests, and prepare us to discern opportunity when it comes, to the end that we make our lives full of satisfaction to ourselves and a blessing to the world in which we live.—Exchange.

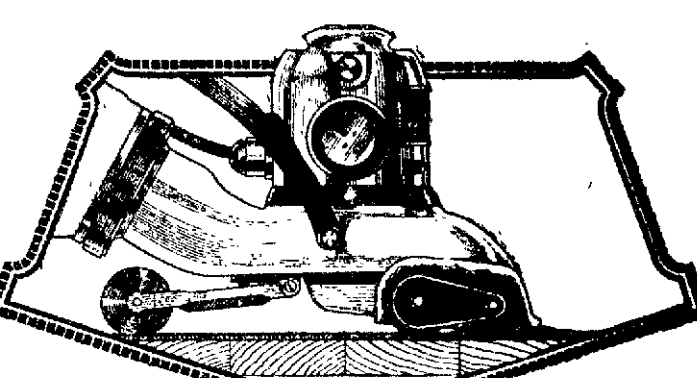

Vast Size of the Sun.
It may surprise many people to learn that the sun, which is by no means a large star, as stars go, could easily contain within its boundaries the entire earth and moon and also the distance between them. In fact, three systems like that consisting of earth and moon could be strung out in a row through the center of the sun, without coming within 50,000 miles of his surface on either side.

"Cleans Without Beating and Pounding"

THESE five words tell the whole reason for the remarkable success of the OHIO-TUEC Electric Vacuum Cleaner. Any rug or carpet can better endure beating with a club than by the brush of a vacuum cleaner driven by its motor at high speed.

The OHIO-TUEC'S brush revolves slowly, gently picking up all thread, hair and lint. Its irresistible but harmless suction alone takes care of all dust and dirt, drawing every dust particle out of the fabric and even right through it from the floor underneath.

PRESIDENTIAL BATTLE WILL BE FOUGHT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The political battleground in the presidential election will be in 12 states.

The storm centers will be in Ohio, New York, Indiana and Illinois, waxing hottest in Ohio.

Each party is reasonably certain to carry 18 states, giving the Democrats 185 electoral votes and the Republicans 195. The Democrats must have 81 more to win and the Republicans 71.

Hottest Fights

Illinois is placed in the Republican column by both Democratic and G. O. P. dopesters, but the Democrats will carry the big fight into this territory if for no other reason than to break the G. O. P. ranks and to keep the Illinois crowd out of the common battleground.

The party that can carry the three doubtful states—New York, Ohio and Indiana, can win. There are 84 electors in those three states, three more than the Democrats would need to win and 11 more than the Republicans would require, provided both parties hold the states here conceded to them. California is considered doubtful because Wilson campaigned against Hughes by less than 5,000 votes. The state is strongly Progressive. The "pep" that Hu and Johnson put into the anti-league campaign in 1912 is bearing on the outcome in California. Colorado has gone Democratic in five of the last 16 presidential elections, but is now considered doubtful because a Republican senator and three Republican congressmen won the state in 1916. The state will be in the Democratic column, but it is turned.

Progressive States.

Idaho is doubtful for the same reason that California is—dissatisfaction with Harding, who is too reactionary to suit the Progressives.

Democrats and Republicans agree that Indiana and New Jersey are exceedingly doubtful.

New Mexico was carried by Wilson and is considered doubtful for the same reason that other western states are.

On New York both parties are going to make the fight of their lives. How the state goes will depend largely on how labor "up state" swings its strength.

But Ohio, home of both candidates, will be the hottest battleground. The Republicans are claiming it by 100,000 votes. Cox has been elected governor three times and lost the state once. Wilson carried it in 1916. When Cox was elected governor in 1914, Harding was elected senator by 100,000 majority.

Other "Doubtfuls."

Both parties put Utah in the doubtful column. Wilson carried it against Hughes by 9,000 and Bryan lost it to Taft by 20,000. It is pro-league and Progressive. Washington the same.

Wyconsin is normally Republican, but is doubtful now because it isn't known what Robert LaFollette will do.

Wyoming was carried by Wilson by 8,000. The Republicans think they'll

AMERICAN RED CROSS TO GIVE RURAL HELP

Program for Public Health and Community Welfare Is Now Well Under Way.

Three communities and towns of less than 1000 population benefit in a very large part by the aid of the health and community welfare work of the American Red Cross. Almost all of the Red Cross chapters have some health service in their territory. There is no Red Cross Rural Service.

Through the Bureau of Rural Service, the Red Cross is now out of life in the health and welfare. In this program public health instruction and general educational measures of health education and welfare are being carried on.

As a result of community organization, the Red Cross has been able to do a great deal of good for the health and welfare of the people. MOTHER OF FIRST AMERICAN SOLDIER KILLED IN FRANCE

Mrs. Alice Gresham Dodd, First War Mother Of The Nation Gives Entire Credit For Recovery Of Her Health To The Well Known Medicine, Tanlac.

The following remarkable endorsement of Tanlac was given recently by Mrs. Alice Gresham Dodd, at the National Memorial Home, Gavin Park, Indianapolis, Ind., which home was presented to her by the patriotic people of Indianapolis as evidence of their appreciation of the services rendered to his country by her son, Corporal James D. Gresham, the first American soldier killed in France. Expressions of sympathy were received by Mrs. Dodd from all parts of the United States, and the newspapers of the country carried the story of the first "war mother."

The shock of her son's death resulted in the serious breakdown of Mrs. Dodd's health, but everyone will learn with interest and pleasure that she is now in splendid health again. When seen at her home recently she made the following statement, giving the entire credit for her recovery to the well-known medicine, Tanlac.

"After my dear boy's death I had a general breakdown in health," said Mrs. Dodd. "At first it was just indigestion. My food used to upset me and I had to diet myself very carefully, which wasn't much hardship as I lost all desire to eat. Then I had an attack of rheumatism, with severe pain in my shoulders, back and arms. Sometimes I used to suffer a great deal, and my joints would get all swollen up and stiff. I was able to do very little about the house, and at times couldn't even cook a meal. I got very nervous and restless and at night would lay awake for hours, and lost many nights' sleep as a consequence."

Tanlac is sold by all leading druggists.

MRS. ALICE GRESHAM DODD, of Gavin Park, Evansville, Ind.

"A friend of mine had received a great deal of help from Tanlac, and it was she who advised me to try it. I am so glad I did for it proved the best medicine I have ever taken. It soon gave me a good appetite and seemed to settle my stomach so that I was no longer troubled with indigestion. I don't know what it is to have rheumatic pains now, the swelling and stiffness has all gone out of my joints and I am able to do the work of the house with the greatest ease. My nerves are now steady and strong. I sleep fine at night, and I feel better in health than ever before in my life. I shall always be grateful for what Tanlac has done for me, and shall recommend it every chance I get."

Tanlac is sold by all leading druggists.

WOMAN'S INTUITION

What has become of woman's intuition, of which we used to hear so much? Surely it should be of incalculable value to her in political life. It is something like the unerring instinct which it has been said to be. And so wonder that men, if they really believe in woman's intuition, should fear her as a political antagonist. By its aid elections will no longer be guesswork and the vote will be counted, as heretofore, but the intuition of woman will not lead her to select the right candidate at all times, but always to predict correctly the result of the election.

to public affairs her intuition seems to be forgotten. Perhaps this is her penalty for changing her sphere, and perhaps the intuition was only an imaginary attribute, one of the fantastic qualities with which we are fond of deluding ourselves and others. Now that women have come into the open, as it were, the real test of the intuition is at hand. Either it must make good and show that it is something more accurate than reading of cards by a gypsy, the gyrations of the ouija board, or even the sayings of spirits through the trance of a medium. It will be an interesting experiment to note how woman's intuition will stand the test of political life or if it will stand it at all.

A Gladsome Day

By GEORGE ELMER COBB

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western Newspaper Union.)

"Whatever are you doing, Ezra?" The call came from downstairs, and Ezra Boyden, guiltily snatched up something from the little leather-covered box upon the bureau in which his wife kept odds and ends.

He had been fumbling over its contents in a hurried, suspicious way so long that Martha had challenged his unusual tardiness in reaching the breakfast table.

"Looking for something I couldn't locate right away," he explained.

"One of those troublesome collar buttons, I suppose," surmised Mrs. Boyden in her mild pleasant way, and the incident passed and Ezra was relieved, and as he got free of the house later felt in his pocket and produced a worn gold ring with an empty setting. It had held a small diamond thirty years back when he had given it to Martha. She had never taken it off her finger through twenty-nine years of wedded life until the little sparkling stone was missing one day. She had grieved over the loss, but the most persistent search failed to disclose any trace of the diamond.

"Poor thing!" soliloquized Ezra. She took it to heart terribly, although she said little. Martha always looked upon a diamond ring as a sort of certificate of respectability. Then, too, she knew it meant a lot of scraping and saving to get it in the old days.

These days had not been any better as to worldly gain for the faithful plodding pair. Many a time Ezra had thought of trying to replace the lost diamond, but could never quite spare the necessary amount. Now, however, he hummed a cheery little snatch of a song and smiled to himself.

"Martha hasn't mentioned it," he soliloquized, "because she is afraid that I can't do much for her, but this is our thirty-fifth wedding anniversary. Well, I'm glad I can provide a little surprise for her. With our two married girls living three states away and Randal tossing on some distant ocean, or wandering in Asia, or worse, Martha wants something to break the monotony. I'm going to squeeze out enough to fix up that ring if it does make me hard up for a year to come. I wish I could make it a piano, too. How Martha longs for one, and the other night just set me all stirred up."

Upon that "other night" at a neighbor's for perhaps the first time in twenty years Martha had been lured to touch the ivory keys. She was all a tremble as she quivered over a faint, frightened rendition of "Love's Old Sweet Dream." How the longing notes revived the past with Ezra! What a delicious flush crossed the gentle refined face of Martha! As he thought of the old cheery parlor organ at home with its wheezy bellows and broken keys he almost cried.

Ezra dropped into the village jewelry store. Its proprietor was seated at a table in the rear room upon which a stranger, suggesting a traveling salesman, was exhibiting some stores spread out upon a sheet of delicate white tissue paper. Mr. Drake came out promptly behind the showcase.

"I want you to fix up this ring with a moderate-priced diamond," spoke Ezra and went over its history. Then, the flood gates of feeling wide open, he desecrated tenderly upon Martha and her piano playing. "What will a stone cost me," he questioned. "I'll pay a little down and the balance along."

"Hold on—don't you know me?" The stranger, rubbing his coat sleeve across his eyes, came forward. He confronted Ezra, who gave a great gulp and fairly lurched into the arms of the other.

"Randal!" he cried. "Oh! what will mother say! My boy! my boy! Back home and safe, and on such a day—our thirty-fifth wedding anniversary." "Yes, father, it's me, and I've got half a hundred diamonds for you to pick from. I was just trying to sell some. First, though, we'll select the very finest one for mother. They represent my luck in the Transvaal district. And about a piano, now fix things up right?"

Just before noon a messenger brought Mrs. Boyden a small package. It contained the old ring adorned with a dazzling, glowing diamond.

Ezra's breath nearly left her. "From your loving husband," read an accompanying note. "Will bring a friend home to supper with me," and Martha sat down and cried.

Later there arrived a piano, and as Martha opened it a card lying upon the keyboard read: "All yours—from a friend."

Just at dusk Ezra and Randal neared home. Through the lighted parlor window they could note wife and mother seated at the piano, a picture of mature grace and beauty.

Her face was radiant. To the sweet notes of "Love's Old Sweet Dream" the diamond glow shot hither and thither. She came to the door as Randal knocked. The ringing, glad-some cry of a woman glowed out as she clasped the stranger who had come to dinner in her loving arms.

carry it this time, but they do not count it certain.

If the Republicans hold their conceded strength, and fail to carry Ohio, they will have to get New York, California, Colorado, Wisconsin, New Mexico and Utah to win. Then if the Democrats should steal Illinois from them they would have to take in addition Idaho, Washington and Wyoming of the doubtful states to get over.

It is not necessary for either party to have New York to win.

Famous Small Bells.
The source of the dinner table "small bells" is not always traceable. Some come from old churches, where they have served as altar bells, especially those that have Latin quotations on the medallions on the sides of their cup-shaped gongs. Those that represent famous personages are after the fashion of the period in which their deeds made them familiar figures in the public eye. Some are patterned after the bells in certain famous chimelms—like the copies of bells from the famous Miller collection in California.

Loyalty
The Charleston News and Courier draws attention to a recent article by Irvin Cobb, in which he tells how a vice financier was once trailed all day and half the night by a group of reporters he was trying to elude. When at last they had run him down and gotten from him the information they were after, he halted them as they were leaving.
"I have answered your questions," he said. "I would like now to have you answer one for me: what is it in your work which calls forth such zeal and loyalty as you gentlemen have displayed in this affair today and as I have known you to display again and again? Why is it that I cannot command such zeal and such loyalty of the men who work for me, no matter how much I pay them?"
The Courier adds the experience of David A. Littlefield of the New York Evening Post. Mr. Littlefield had gone up in a big navy "blimp" to report the cup race. "Something went wrong and the officers in charge hurried the blimp high into the air to try and correct the trouble. They failed and the blimp began to fall from a height of 3,000 feet. Disaster seemed certain, but in the crisis it was not of himself or his own safety that Mr. Littlefield thought. His whole attention was given to hurrying along in the world. Loyalty, intelligence, energy and persistence won in my line of endeavor. The reporter has no personality on these virtues, but he is a fine example of them in everyday practice.

BETTER BABIES
The formula for better babies has passed from coast to coast, and taken form hold of American mothers. Few women realize how much the ill health of the mother influences the unborn child, both physically and mentally. Women who suffer from mysterious pains, backache, nervousness, mental depression, headaches, etc., should rely on Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, which for nearly forty years has been standard remedy for these ailments.—Adv.

OLDTIMERS DISCUSS BIRTH OF CURWENSVILLE AS TOWN

Yesterday afternoon while seated out on the job did not ask how much among a number of the old sages of money he was to receive as a day's Curwensville the question arose as to pay, but always asked the foreman how old the town is and when was it how many "jiggers" he was to receive during the day's hour of labor. The argument became a very heated one. Now if we are to judge from the age and some of the aged ones who had lived here all of their lives, some 80 odd years assumed the statement that it was a town then and long before their time. A little research among what records can be obtained we learn that the town was known by the name of Curwin or Curwensville some time prior to the building of the old Erie and Philadelphia pike, which as near as we can gather, was erected or at least a portion of it, by the father of Hiram Leech who was then a mere lad and acted in the capacity of what was known in the early day as a "jigger boss" or one whose duty it was to supply the men with water and whiskey, carrying a jug of each in one hand and a jug of the other. A man when he lived, 1777 to 1800, at the time of the the old Susquehanna house was built and doing a most flourishing business to wayfarers who had occasion to travel the newly made pike extending from Erie to Philadelphia and the only thoroughfare by which goods were transferred and distributed to merchants between those cities on the way going west and conveying loads of iron ore on their return eastward. Much of the history of the people who lived along its route and did business as well as actual location of a road in itself has been lost and it is only by memory of those who have passed the ages of three score and ten that we can obtain anything like an accurate data of this now ancient piece of what was then known as the great easterning foot across the mountains. Nevertheless, Curwensville is a very old town.

You can do as you please in Russia but it is just what the trouble is. For you can do as you please in Russia.

Sometime in the early days of the town, a man who was a "jigger boss" was known in the early day as a "jigger boss" or one whose duty it was to supply the men with water and whiskey, carrying a jug of each in one hand and a jug of the other. A man when he lived, 1777 to 1800, at the time of the

PENNSYLVANIA FORESTS

Short Talks On Forestry And The Lumber Situation

By Gifford Pinchot, Chief Forester of Pennsylvania
No 1 The Bare Facts

The one word which properly describes the facts surrounding the forest and lumber situation in Pennsylvania is "bare."

Wasteful lumbering and fire—lack of attention to the tree-growing lands of the State—have made bare millions of Pennsylvania acres which by all that is reasonable should be growing one crop of trees after another, for that is all they can be made to grow. Pennsylvania has 5,000,000 acres fit only for growing trees—an area greater than the entire state of New Jersey. It used to be covered with the richest forest. At present it is producing little or nothing for the use and benefit of our people. An area that produces nothing is a desert. This is Pennsylvania's desert.

The Pennsylvania Desert costs the people of the State $100,000,000 a year—twice as much as it costs to run the State Government.

It works out like this. We use in Pennsylvania about 2,300,000,000 feet of lumber each year. We might grow nearly all of it at home, but we have been letting the fires run instead. As a result we are paying not less than $25,000,000 a year in freight charges on lumber brought into the State. This freight bill grows and will soon exceed $40,000,000 every 12 months.

In addition, and apart from the freight, we pay $50,000,000 more each year for the 1,700,000,000 feet of lumber we import.

This is nearly pure loss, but it does not tell the whole story. The other losses due to forest destruction and the closing or removal of woodwork-ing industries are very great and there is besides the loss from floods, the loss of business to the business men of the State, the loss to newspapers through the excessive cost of newsprint which might just as well have been produced at home, the loss of population driven to other States to find employment in lumbering, the loss of fish and game, the loss of summer resort business, and other losses, which combined we may very conservatively place at $25,000,000 a year. The total is one hundred millions.

The direct damage from fire is the smallest of all—probably less than half a million—because outside of farmers' woodlots there is so little valuable timber left to burn. It is not what the fires burn up, but what they prevent from growing, that truly measures the damage they cause.

Taking it altogether, we are well within the truth in estimating that the Pennsylvania Desert keeps out of the pockets of our people and puts into their cost of living, not less than $100,000,000 a year.

Until 1907 Pennsylvania was a lumber exporting State. Then we started importing lumber. Now we import three times as much as our forests produce.

From 2,300,000,000 board feet produced in Pennsylvania forests in 1899 there was a drop to 500,000,000 board feet estimated for 1919.

Tree cutting goes on without regard to growth of trees. This means forest devastation. It means neglect of our true economic interests that borders on the criminal. For this condition Pennsylvania is to blame—Pennsylvania in its capacity as a Commonwealth of intelligent people.

The remedy lies in renewed protection and care of our forests and in true statesmanship on the part of our lawmakers and law administrators.

Longfellow in Westminster Abbey. Among the memorial tablets or statues in Westminster abbey stands a bust of Longfellow, the only American who has been so honored.

We'll Say They Are. "Maama," said a five-year-old Charles looking up from his story books, "what does this story mean about a great-grandmother? Ain't all grandmothers great?"

Relic of Long-Past Age. While cutting peat in the Southern headwater area, the shepherds unearthed a horn which may have belonged to Bos primigenius or B. longifrons, the wild oxen that ranged over Britain from the glacial age to near historic times. It was found at a depth of four feet from the surface, and the shepherds also averred that there was a small patch of brown hair attached, which is quite possibly, as the peat would act as a preservative. —London Mail.

Largest Membership. The French Legion of Honor has a much larger membership than any other prominent order.

Proper Care of Tools. All sharp tools should be wrapped up, otherwise they will rust and rust blunts their cutting edges. The careful carpenter wraps his tools in a wooden cloth well oiled. The careful chaffeur wraps all polished tools and puts them in the tool box and keeps them away from the storage battery, the fumes of which will quickly rust them.

X-Rays in Tuberculosis. In the finished positive photograph, the lungs of a normal person look white—this representing the air contained in the cells of the lungs. If the lung is diseased—as in pneumonia—it will show dark, i. e., the cells being overfilled with matter. Tuberculosis is diagnosed by the spotted, mottled appearance of the affected lungs.

BRANDS LIGHTING MANUFACTURERS AS "SHARPERS"

A Bradford Township farmer has been having some difficulty with a "thin" elm lamp lighting plant, and he has carried his case to The Rural New Yorker for advice. The following letter from that magazine fully explains the nature of the case and this gentleman request their publication for the benefit of local farmers.

Dear Sir,
Answering your recent letter, the Night Commander Lighting Company, 1200 N. Michigan, I think the worst mistake we have ever run into—in the lighting business—

Some six years ago the firm operated with a plant in agent in New York State and the methods of then agent in cutting order were anything but legitimate and fair. We are enclosing you one or two clippings published in The Rural New Yorker regarding their operation at the time.
We thank the story the agent told you that other were buying the same plant at the "key-stone $8.00" as a higher price—nearly a hoax. We have no fault at any rate in any representation which the agent of this concern may make, while we have no complaint about the generator itself, and we are inclined to think that the generator is as good as any. We, however, do not approve of the methods of any of the active lighting manufacturers and we do not carry the advantage of any of them.
Very truly yours,
THE RURAL NEW YORKER,
W. M. F. DILLON.

Dear Sir:
Answering your recent letter with further reference to the Night Commander Lighting Company, the "cheme" employed by the agents of this firm when working in New York State a few years ago was to go to a farmer and tell him that they would sell him a lighting plant on the condition that he would receive a commission on all the sales made in the vicinity, which would be sufficient to pay for his outfit. They would go to the next farmer and tell him the same thing and many contracts were secured on this fraudulent basis.

The farmer in the vicinity of Mexico, New York, who was deceived in this respect, combined both interest and refused to accept the plant or pay for them. The Night Commander Lighting Company made a profit of $1000.00 and then left him when the case was called for trial one of the lawyers of the Night Commander Lighting Company, who made an attempt to make a case out of it. We do not know if the generator of the concern is any higher in price than others and so far as we know they are giving just as good satisfaction. The J. B. Calk Company of New York City, is the most prominent manufacturer of the lighting plants, but the method of their salesmen, who are a bad lot, that of the Night Commander Lighting Company are not above criticism and we have had many complaints about them that we have referred to the Calk Company advertising also.

If you have signed a contract with the Night Commander Lighting Company for one of their plants we assume you will have to take it or prepare to defend a suit. It is, of course, a question for each individual farmer to decide for himself whether an electric plant would be more desirable but we have found the methods of the electric lighting many attorneys entirely honorable and above board.
Very truly yours,
THE RURAL NEW YORKER,
W. M. F. DILLON.

Extracting Broken Screw. A tool for extracting broken set screws is described by the Scientific American as resembling a drill with a coarse left-handed thread. A hole is drilled into what remains of the screw of bolt, the extractor is inserted, and as it turns it exerts a reverse influence on the broken screw and backs the latter out on its own thread.

WILL CONVEY IN CLEVELAND

Call issued for Second National Convention of Legion to Be Held September 27-29.

The call for the second national convention of the American Legion, to be held in Cleveland September 27, 28 and 29, and which approximately 3,000 delegates and alternates, in addition to some 10,000 visiting Legionnaires and their families are expected to attend, was issued from Legion national headquarters recently.

Representation in the convention will be by state departments, each department being entitled to five delegates and an additional delegate for each 1000 members fully paid up by that department according to the books of the national treasurer at the close of business August 28, 1920. Each department also is entitled to a number of alternates equal to the number of its delegates, but alternates will have power to vote only in the absence of the regular delegates.

The convention is called, the call recites, for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year, amending the national constitution and for the transaction of such other business as may be brought before it in conformity with the national constitution.

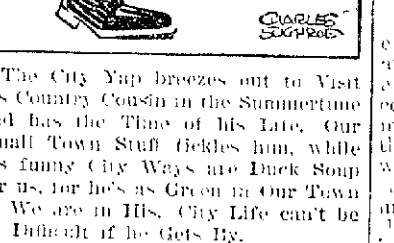

The term of office of the present national executive committee will expire with the adjournment of the convention and the new committee will convene within twenty-four hours after this adjournment. Members of both old and new committees are expected to attend this meeting, and one to be held by the old committee, probably September 25.

Each delegation may be accompanied to the convention by such members of the Legion and their families as it sees fit to invite. As far as space will permit, tickets to the convention will be issued to each department delegation for the convenience of these guests.

The convention committee, of which C. C. Chambers, 1729 East Twenty-second street, Cleveland, O., is chairman, has charge of arrangements for the convention.

Many Ranchers in Band. Revellie Post No. 14 of Lawellen, Neb., is made up mostly of ranchers who travel many miles to attend post meetings.

WHAT IS A PUBLIC HEALTH NURSING SERVICE

your every assistance especially as to housing conditions. Get her pleasantly located and do not ask or expect her to live any place where you would not care to live yourself. Here is a program of what you should do for her:

1. Meet your nurse.
 2. Introduce her to town people, either individually or at mass meetings.
 3. Surround her with pleasant living conditions.
 4. See that the work gets the necessary publicity and provide for her transportation need.
- Her hours of service should be from 8 to 5.
- Arrange for the type of call for her service.
- It is the duty of the committee to see that the nurse is not imposed upon.

She should have her Sundays off and one-half day weekly, together with one month's vacation on salary salary $125 per month and mileage.

She should have an office and office house, with someone responsible for calls.

Records should be carefully kept for their statistical value.

Now let us get back to your county service. You pretty well understand public home nursing in a general way. This is a chapter service—including branches and auxiliaries. Mr. Reed has given the geography of your county a great deal of thought. She has made a careful study of the entire territory and decided upon what we think is the best sub-division of your part of the county. There are to be 9 sections, including Clearfield.

Plan for Service.

The nurse belongs to all of us, so we have tried to figure out just how she can best serve all of you—what type of nursing would be most advantageous to you?

For a county service we feel school nursing is most satisfactory phase of nurse. It is more far reaching. With the county divided into nine sections it will allow 4 to 6 weeks in each section and the visiting of all schools.

Right here arises the question of transportation, and the proper handling of emergency calls.

And again I want to impress upon you that the fundamental factor is a proper organization of this type is team work. Neither the N. A. C. nor the nurse must stand on the dignity of their position. They should pool their knowledge and discuss freely together all problems as they arise. A frank interchange of ideas, honesty of approach, and loyalty to each other are essential to the development and growth of a public home nursing service. A house divided against itself is bound to fall.

The nurse needs a substantial backing—moral support—she does not want to be coddled but a little human sympathy understanding and encouragement help a lot in this and every phase of public work.

It is slow, difficult pioneer work but you are bound to get results if you work together with the right spirit and determination!

Cleaning Books.

Most family libraries are disfigured by one or two once lovely volumes in impractical bindings of pale silk or white leather dimmed by grime. Art gum or a sort of kneaded eraser may clean them. If not, try fine powdered pumice, lightly applied with a clean chamolite. This is what picture dealers use to clean the margins of old prints. It roughens the surface less than rubber.

Temperature Important.

Lead is said to act like steel at ordinary temperatures in liquid air. It will serve as a helical spring, for example. The behavior of soft non-elastic metals is very interesting. It shows how very important temperature is. Just as iron is soft and inelastic at a high red color, so lead is dull and soft at ordinary temperatures, for it is well on its way to be melted.

Removing Grease Spots.

To remove grease spots from carpets mix fuller's earth and magnesia together in equal proportions by scraping and pounding. Form this into a paste with hot water and spread on the spots. The next day brush it off and, if necessary, repeat the process.

Old Man Economy says:

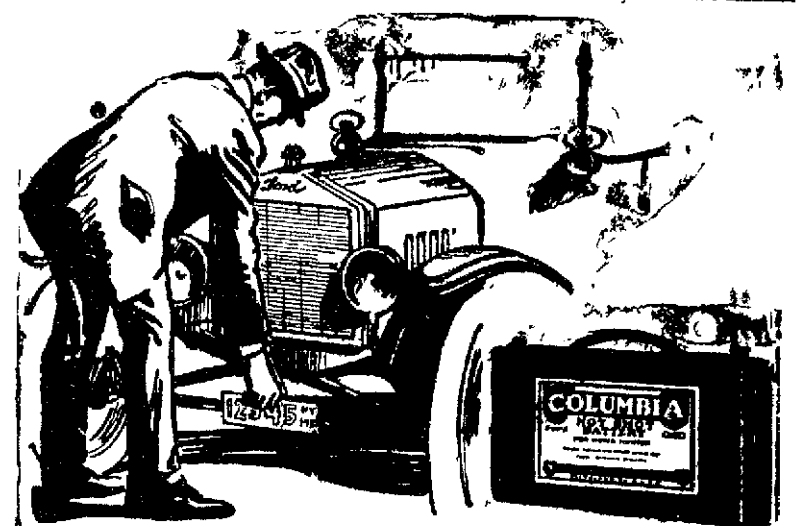

Just for the fun of it, I made a little visit over town today into the homes of our best people, and what do you suppose I found? Just this—to be happy you must be Electrical. I found the happiest families are those that do things with the newest electrical appliances.

Why were they so happy over it? Because Electrical Appliances—for one thing—mean saving money. And what could bring more happiness these days than a full family till?

ANOTHER TRAGEDY ENACTED IN TOWNSHIP

RUSSIA HAS ONLY TWO DAYS TO STATE POLICY

By WEBB MILLER

LONDON, August 25—Whether the most of Europe will again be involved in war was expected to be decided within 48 hours.

Russia has until Friday evening to reply to the Anglo-Italian note demanding modification of its peace terms to Poland. Premier Lloyd George informed the Bolsheviks through Arthur Balfour, Lord President of the Council, that unless a satisfactory reply is forthcoming within a time limit Great Britain will change her policy toward Russia.

In the event of a resumption of hostilities on a major scale Germany may become partially involved since the sentiment of the German population is mostly pro-Russian. Calls for volunteers have been made in east Prussia to aid the Reds according to advices here. The Bolshevik representatives Kamenoff and Karim have obtained their passports and expect to leave Friday in the event the government fails to accede to Poland's demands. The government contends that Lloyd George is fully informed regarding the Bolshevik demands on Poland.

If the Bolsheviks refuse to modify their terms as demanded by the Allies the military plans of the latter will be put into immediate effect. The British navy is understood to be ready to establish a blockade in 12 hours.

Reports from various sources today revealed the magnitude of the Russian defeat in Poland. At no point on the 500 mile battle front have the Reds been able to make a substantial stand. In addition to the 90,000 troops already captured Warsaw advices today said that the Red army of 50,000 in the Mova region are negotiating for surrender.

INCREASED FARES TOMORROW

WASHINGTON, August 25—The increased freight and passenger rates will go into effect at midnight tonight. Higher rates or passenger and freight on the Great Lakes and coastwise vessels may go into effect at the same time if they wish. These rates were granted by the Shipping Board yesterday.

ITALIAN MISS, 18, KIDNAPPED BY 3 MEN IN AUTOCAR

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 25—A mother and sister are frantically urging the police to trace Josephine Cataline, aged 18, they only support, and her three abductors who this morning forced her into an automobile and were lost in the morning mist. Josephine on her way to work was seized by a man alleged to be an Italian admirer. A cloth was wrapped around her head to stifle her cries and she was put in the car in the sight of witnesses. Too startled by the boldness of the kidnapers, the witnesses did not obtain a good description of the car. One Italian, long an admirer of Josephine's, was missing from his room today and an automobile to which he had access is believed to tally with the meagre description of the abductors' automobile. Police say that the youth, long harboring the thought of marriage to Josephine, may have resorted to force to obtain his ambition.

CHARGES BRITAIN IS BEHIND COX CAMPAIGN FUND

CHICAGO, Aug. 25—Great Britain is ready to furnish money to aid in the election of a Democratic President, Congressman Frank Britten, of Illinois alleged in a statement today. Britten's statement, issued from the Republican national headquarters said that the British Parliament had voted that the British ambassador be given an "entertainment fund" of $87,500. "This fund found its way to the Democratic National Committee. It will be added to by ten times that amount to elect the new disciple of Wilson's with money rather than with honest issues."

The man, petrified with shock, stood still in the middle of the tracks and was instantly killed. The children, hanging by their hands to the ties, screamed for their father to jump. The mother leaped into the river and she and the children were

Curwensville Is Scene Of Very Enthusiastic And Earnest Christian Workers

CONVENTION SCRIBE REPORTS

The 46th Annual Convention of the Clearfield County Sabbath School Association is being held in the Curwensville Methodist church yesterday and today. There are about 150 delegates in attendance.

The first session was held yesterday afternoon. It was called to order by President S. C. Watts. The devotional exercises were conducted by Dr. Deavor, pastor of the Morrisdale Methodist church.

President Watts delivered the first address of the afternoon and he had some very encouraging facts for us. He reported 141 organized classes in the county, 152 cradle rolls and 20 teacher training classes. He reported a slight increase in membership. We have 28,426 members in the county, an increase of three hundred. The number of church accessions was seven hundred and ten. The largest Sunday school in the county is the First Methodist Sunday School of DuBois with a membership of 1282. The second largest Sunday School in the county is Trinity Methodist Clearfield with a membership of 1120.

The next period was occupied by Dr. Charles W. Brubaker, general secretary of the Sunday Schools of the United Brethren church. Dr. Brubaker possessed a pleasing personality and is a fine talker. His theme was "Trained Officers and Teachers."

The crude product in the Sunday School is the baby. What are we going to make out of that baby? There are three outstanding aims in every Sunday School. First to reach every available person in the community. If the Sunday Schools of North America get busy this fall and put on a campaign of expansion, we will not only win the three million we have lost, but many millions more. The second aim is to reach every person in the Sunday School for Jesus Christ. If you don't win your pupils for Jesus Christ in a few years you won't have a church. The third aim is to train the pupils for effective Christian service.

Only one eighth of the Sunday Schools in North America have a teacher training class. Every public school teacher is required to have a certificate. The task of the Sunday School worker is to build up intensively and extensively. He must know the product that he has to deal with. Every mechanic must learn his trade. The demand is for trained workers in every profession. If it requires trained workers in the world of business and amusement, we ought to be willing to take a little time to train ourselves to do service for the cause of humanity. The trouble is with the most of us we don't know the traits of childhood and youth.

The officer and teacher should know where each pupil belongs and the necessary organization to meet his need. There should be a classification superintendent in every Sunday school.

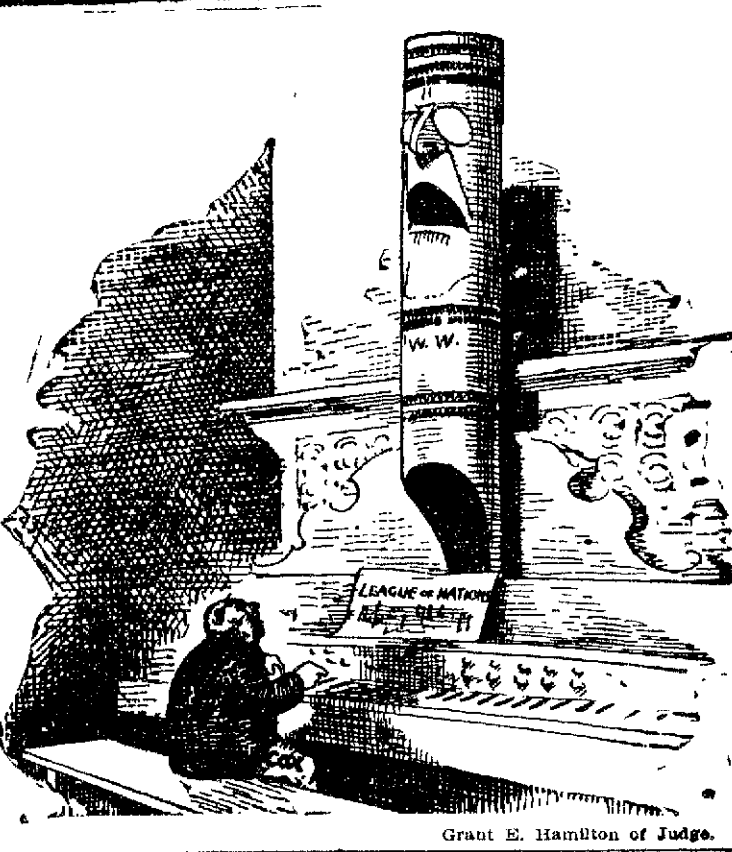

We should have lesson helps suitable for each child at each stage of his development. The nature of the child must determine the nature of the educational process. God gave us the Bible to teach the pupil and there is enough material in it for the pupil at each stage of development. The Sunday School is a working unit and no department works unto itself.

The Sunday School worker should be interested in the business end of the school. We skip over the weak places and emphasize the strong places.

The Sunday School worker should guard carefully his personal habits and appearance. What we say and what we do tell wonderfully with boys and girls. Our boys and girls will not be any better than we are.

The Sunday School worker should

YOU CAN BUY YOUR BASEBALL TICKET BEFORE GOING TO THE PARK TOMORROW

Anticipating a gigantic rush at the gate of the ball park tomorrow afternoon, the C. C. A. have decided to have a ticket booth open over town during the morning and early afternoon for tomorrow's game with the Kane big leaguers.

have poise. He should be active. He should keep sweet. A lot of sour folks are trying to teach children to be sweet. Don't fly off the handle at the slightest provocation. Learn how to call a Sunday School to order. Train your pupils to be generous. Be readers and students. Be loyal to the church of Jesus Christ. Every Sunday School teacher and officer ought to be a church member and a loyal one. There is too much fault-finding with the church. Be a spirit-filled Christian.

We must have a training department in every Sunday school.

President Watts announced a tour of the county by county and state workers beginning with a county conference in Clearfield September 7, 1920.

The last period was occupied by Walter E. Myers of Erie, Superintendent of the adult division Pennsylvania Sunday School Association. He is a strong talker and gave us much to think about. His theme was "Adults, Results." The test of a movement's worthwhileness is the measure of approval God puts on it. The reason we don't know God so well, is because we haven't purposed in our life to know his will. The seal of God's approval rested on the Adult Bible Class movement. Originally the Sunday School was not a religious school and for a long time it was only a primary department. It finally expanded till we have our four splendid departments.

The test of God's approval on a movement is the measure of use he makes of it. In 1905 at Toronto, we had 5000 enrolled in adult Bible classes and in the Sunday School parade in Philadelphia in 1912, twenty thousand men marched. We now have 13,000 Adult Bible classes in Pennsylvania.

The Adult Bible classes have established many Re-Create Missions in the city. They have sent gospel teams out into country places where the Gospel is not heard. What we might do is what we ought to see, rather than what we have done. There isn't any measure we can put on the results of this movement, when it is put at God's disposal.

The Chan appointed the following

Boardman defeated Berwindsdale in a hot game at the latter place yesterday. Alexander, Lavan and Berriman of the local team assisted Boardman in winning. The score was 9 to 4. Alexander hit a home run with three men on the bases.

The Curwensville American Legion team defeated the strong Bloomingtown team at Curwensville yesterday afternoon by the score of 10 to 1. Hippe, for Curwensville, pitched a "no hit" game against the Pike town jugglers. Solly Robinson of the legion team at the bat.

BERT OGDEN, RESISTING ARREST, SHOT TO DEATH

STATE POLICE SOUGHT TO TAKE HIM INTO CUSTODY ON CHARGE OF PASSING WORTHLESS CHECK IN TOWN

Bert Ogden, residing on the John Carns place on Mt. Zion ridge, was shot to death about 7:45 o'clock last night in an encounter with State Policemen Goldberg and Keogh.

The deceased, who is about 50 years of age and the son of Henry Ogden of Lawrence township, was a life-long resident of this community, having been born and raised near where he met his tragic end. He has been acting strangely for some time past and it is the belief of his friends that he has been deranged for some time.

On Monday Ogden went to the lumber yard of John C. Graham and representing himself to be George W. Brown purchased a quantity of lumber and shingles. He started home with a wagon load of the lumber and scattered the shingles all along the street on the West Side, kicking the last remaining bundle or two off the wagon near Boyce's store.

Mr. Graham was notified and gathered up his shingles. He then went to the Ogden home to see about payment for his lumber and when approached Mr. Ogden gave him a check for $250, signed with the name of "Geo. W. Brown."

Mr. Graham found the check to be phony and secured a warrant for Ogden. The warrant was given to State Policeman Keogh, who saw him on the street and notified him that he was under arrest. Bert told the officer he would take his team home and appear at the "squire's" office for a hearing. This he failed to do and the warrant was turned over to Trooper Goldberg on Tuesday morning.

When Bert came to town yesterday morning he was arrested by Goldberg. He had his team with him and asked the officer and Mr. Graham to allow him to take his rig home, saying he had some provisions to take to his family, and that as he was unable to furnish bail he would have to go to jail and he desired to fix things up at home before being locked up, but promised to come in and give himself up before evening.

When he failed to return by supper time last evening, Mr. Graham and Officers Goldberg and Keogh went out to his home to arrest him. They arrived at the secluded little farm, about two miles from Clearfield, between 7:30 and 7:45 o'clock. Mr. Graham stopped his car on the public road at the mouth of the lane leading to the farm house and the officers started down toward the house. They met Mrs. Ogden near the barn, about fifty yards above the house and when asked where her husband was she replied that he had left the house a few minutes before. When the officers said they were going down to look for him she begged them not to go near the house. When near the house the officers saw their man run out of the house clad only in a top shirt and juke behind a clump of bushes in the yard. They cautiously approached the hiding place and when they called to Ogden to come out he jumped up and started to run across the field. The troopers called upon him to halt or they would shoot and when he obeyed their command they placed him under arrest. He resisted and struck Keogh when they attempted to handcuff him.

When they returned toward the house Mrs. Ogden appeared in the door with her husband's trousers in her hand and a "feers told him to get his pants on when When he tried to have them taken off him and land-

When Goldberg came to town at once and notified his captain at Butler, Pa., and then notified the County authorities. District Attorney Arnold sent for County Coroner D. I. Pollum, of DuBois, who arrived at the scene about 12:20 in the evening with "Squire John M. Bain.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS CURWENSVILLE

A case of diphtheria was reported in the home of Ray Williams yesterday.

Real estate rumor hath it that Owen Jones has purchased the three houses and lot on South Side of Anderson Creek from the Hanna Caldwell estate.

Mrs. J. C. Bloom and daughter Miss Alice will leave today for a point near Pottsville and will spend the next ten days with a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Alden, who resides on a farm.

The Crescent ball team won the Monday afternoon game played on the home grounds by a score of 7 to 0.

It has now come to light that some boy using an air gun has broken more than a dozen of lights in rear walls of the High School building. We cannot see where boys find any amusement in the wanton destruction of public property and if names of these boys could be secured, the School Board should force a payment for the broken windows.

Miss Marion Hawkins left today for La Junta, Colorado, where she expects to make her future home with a sister, Mrs. P. G. Gilliam.

Through the courtesy of Charles Bowers head of the Charles Bowers Coal Company, the writer was given a pleasant auto ride to Lumber City and home by way of Grampian. The roads were in fair condition over the whole route, and we certainly enjoyed the trip. Mr. Bowers is interested in coal and mining near Lumber City, more of which will be said later.

Mrs. James Norris left today for Edgar, Neb., where she expects to visit some months with a brother, P. A. Caldwell, after which she will go to Kansas to visit a sister.

The County Sunday School Convention is not the only thing of interest that is going on at the Methodist church this week. Under the plans and management of Dr. J. C. Collins, pastor of that church, a kind of religious institute is being conducted. The object is to impart practical instruction of a most usable character to the membership of the church and especially to the younger portion of the membership. Three central subjects are presented at each session, namely: evangelization, christian stewardship and life work decisions. Rev. W. R. Jones, Lumber City, presents the first; Rev. M. S. Donstine, Clearfield, the second and Rev. C. C. Shively, Clearfield, the third. There were sessions on Monday and Tuesday and there will be two sessions on Thursday and Friday, with possibly a night session on Friday. They are said to be very helpful and enriching to those who attend.

NOTICE TO SOLDIERS

October 8, 1920, has been fixed by the Court and Department of Labor for the hearing for soldiers who have not become citizens. This will be the last hearing for soldiers and all un-naturalized soldiers are requested to appear. You should write the Department of Labor at Pittsburgh, Pa., giving your name and address in order that your name shall be placed on the list for a hearing. Also request the Department to send you a Fact Blank so that you can have some property filled out when you appear at this Court.

Readers of the Progress have been told again and again of the merits of that reliable, time-proved kidney remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills. The experience told are not those of unknown persons, living far away. The cases are Clearfield cases, told by Clearfield people.

O. P. Conklin 414 Nichols St., shoes, states, say: "I suffered with my kidneys some time ago. I was drowsy and would get dizzy. I had a bad headache and a bad pain in the small of my back, which can do me a lot of annoyance. It was difficult for me to stoop over on account of the trouble with my back. Doan's Kidney Pills helped me wonderfully, removing the pain in my back, dizziness and drowsiness. The headaches also went away."

HARRY T. MOREY

When not at work on a picture Harry T. Morey is to be found in No. 16 a dressing room which dates back to the early days of his career in the Brooklyn studio of Vitagraph. It was 10 years ago that he occupied this room with Earle Williams. The walls resemble a combination of art museum and rogues' gallery. They are hung with pictures of Morey in various roles ranging from a policeman, his first part; the crook, Joseph Garson of "Within the Law"; to the high financier in "The Gambler." Recently he has added Philip Grey in "The Birth of a Soul" and a detective character in "The Flaming Cloud."

STATE FORESTS TO YIELD OWN SEED

HARRISBURG, Pa., August 23.—

To carry out the extensive forest tree planting program planned for this State by Gifford Pinchot, the chief forester, the Pennsylvania Department of Forestry this fall will collect large quantities of seed from native trees. Previously the seed for the department's nurseries was purchased from commercial collectors in this and foreign countries, but the inferior quality and high cost has convinced the Pennsylvania foresters that they can save money and procure better seed in this State.

As this is a year of heavy seed bearing by most of the desirable forest trees, unusually large quantities of seed will be collected by the foresters. Seed not planted next spring in the four nurseries operated by the department will be held over for planting in the year following, in case it is a lean seed year.

While most of the seed to be collected will grow young forest trees for planting on State and private timber lands, some seed from deciduous trees will produce shade trees for free distribution to cities and boroughs for municipal and educational plantings.

Estimates by John W. Keller, chief of the Bureau of Silviculture, call for the following seeds this fall:

White pine, 600 pounds; pitch pine, 300 pounds; short leaf pine, 50 pounds; red pine, 300 pounds; white spruce, 60 pounds; walnut, 200 bushels; sugar maple, 50 bushels; tulip poplar, 50 pounds; white ash, 50 bushels; Norway maple, 20 pounds; American elm, 50 pounds; red oak, 40 bushels; pin oak, 10 bushels. An effort is being made by Mr. Keller to procure 75 pounds of Japanese larch and 60 pounds of Norway spruce seed from Japan.

Singing Prevents Consumption.

A well-known tenor who was in danger of losing his voice once took on a job in one of the petroleum refining rooms as an ordinary employee, with the result that he was soon able to resume his work on the concert platform. Which reminds us that singing is excellent for consumption. Sometimes it assists as a cure, but it is nearly always effective as a preventive.

Social Arbiters.

Mrs. Dasher—"No, dear, you mustn't invite the Fanlings and the Jeromes for the same evening. The two families don't speak." Dasher—"Tell 'em over the children, I presume." Mrs. Dasher—"No; their cooks quarreled."—Life.

Difficult to Translate.

A correspondent sends me another story of the difficulties attending the translation of Biblical metaphors into the Eskimo language. "A missionary talking to his converts-to-be had occasion to refer to the 'everlasting crown of glory.' The language did not permit of the precise rendering, so the phrase was turned by the interpreter into the 'beautiful old hat which will never wear out.'—London Observer.

Education in China.

Literacy among the people of South China is greater than among those of the north. Claim is advanced in Canton that nearly all the children of Cantonese parentage, except those of the large boat population, can read; whereas in the north it is unusual to find a family the children of which are all placed in school.

Royalty's Telling Bell.

Great Tom, the chief bell of St. Paul's cathedral, London, England, is only tolled on the death and the funeral of any of the royal family, or the bishop of London, the dean of St. Paul's, or the lord mayor.

The Only Chance.

Mrs. Johnson—"How does yo' feel dis mawnin', Joe?" Mr. Johnson—"I feels bad—mighty bad! I wish dat Providence would have mussy on me an' take me." Mrs. Johnson—"How can you expect it to ef you won't take de doctor's medicine?"—Puck.

Empire Teaches Ten Commandments.

In almost every part of the British empire provision is made for children to learn the ten commandments in school hours. A New Zealand circular urges that "a knowledge of these laws is in the interests of character building and good citizenship, and is also in aid to good government."

Joint Snake's Tail Is Fragile.

The joint snake, or glass snake, is a harmless lizard of the southern United States, superficially resembling the snake. It is so called from its fragility, the tail easily breaking into small pieces.

BEAVER RAISING IN PENNA. SUCCESS

Raising of beaver in the game preserves of Pennsylvania has been a success according to reports of the State Game Commission and it is hoped to carry out plans made last spring to add from fifty to one hundred of the animals to the fifty or seventy-five now making themselves at home in the woods where once they thrived. The beaver are absolutely protected throughout the year in this State.

The beaver, it is hoped to secure are to come from Canada where most of those used to stock preserves were bought last year. The first beaver placed in State preserves recently were a pair liberated in Potter county by the State Game Commission under arrangements made by the late Dr. Joseph Kalbfus. Previously there had been colonies known in Potter and Monroe counties, whose history could not be ascertained. The distribution of beaver this year included six to the Dauphin county preserve; six to Union county; six to the Coburn district of Centre county; four to the Black Log creek district; six to Ashaph in Tioga county; four to Jamison City in Sullivan county; and six to the Hickory Run district of Luzerne and Carbon. These beaver have all been reported thriving.

Only Partly Afraid.

Robert is quite afraid of a neighbor's dog. Recently he was so absorbed with his playing that he failed to notice the approach of Tige until he was at the child's heels. The boy gave a scream, and when auntie hurried to his rescue he tried to be brave and tremblingly exclaimed: "I isn't afraid on the inside where my heart is, it's just my legs that are afraid."

Such Cleanliness!
—when washed with a

Thor Electric
Washing Machine
With its All-Metal Swinging Wringer

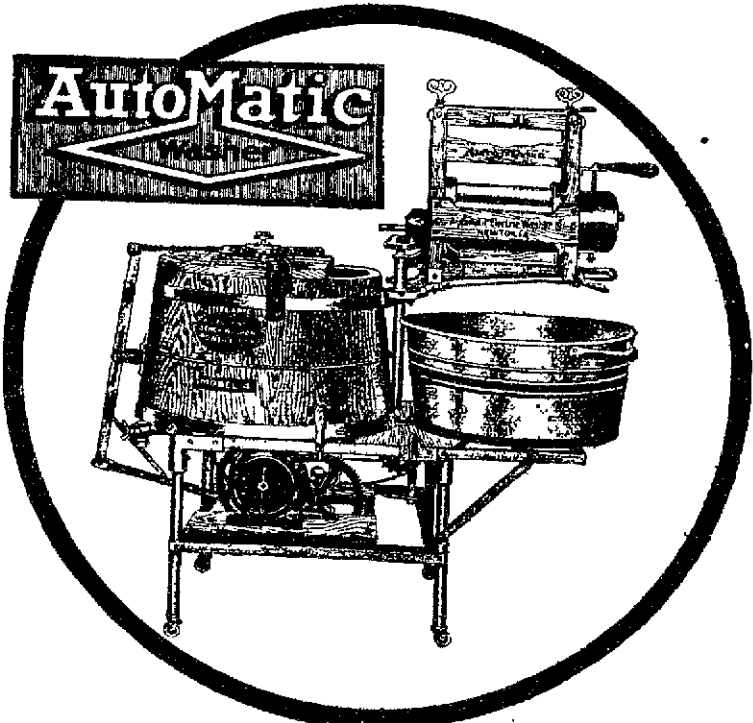

Do you remember the times when you have washed a blanket in the old-fashioned way by hand? Not a very pleasant recollection, is it?

How you wrestled with that wet, soggy mass that seemed to weigh a ton? How you rubbed it a part of the time and swished it about and tried to get it clean when you knew you were not half succeeding.

And when the grilling task was over and you took it off the line—it didn't have the pretty, soft, woolly surface you wanted to see. There was something about it that didn't look quite right—and you wondered if you had actually driven all of the dirt out of it.

What a difference when you use the THOR! No struggle with that exhausting weight—none of that tiring rubbing on the washboard. You just put the blanket into the cylinder, press the button and let the machine do the work. In a little while it is washed perfectly clean.

Peculiar Disease.
Arithmomania—the medical name for another disease—is full of interest. In this the patient has the irresistible impulse to count a certain number of things before doing anything. One case recorded is of a girl who had to tap on the edge of the bed nine times before getting into it; a hundred times before brushing her teeth; to knock three times on a window by the side of the door, and a similar number of times on the door itself before she would unlock it.

Small Things of Great Moment.
A piece of twine that fell into the steering gear of a trans-Atlantic liner cost the company $1,000,000 for repairs and delay. A word carelessly dropped will sometimes cost a life of regrets.

COLUMBUS

By LIZZIE M. PEABODY.

(© 1919, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

As Columbus stood in the unweary yard, which was filled with rubbish of all sorts that fine autumn morning, his pale blue eyes were a dreamy look and his thin little face was turned toward the next yard, which was very neatly kept. Isabella was running down the steps, and Isabella, with her softly glowing dark eyes, her pink cheeks, her shining brown hair, combed smoothly, and her long, thick braids tied with a bright ribbon, to say nothing of the pretty plaid gingham dress she wore, embodied his idea of all that was lovely. "Tis my birthday," the boy called out.

"What did you get for presents?" she asked, with eager eyes fixed upon him.

"Oh! I didn't get anything. Dad says I'm getting too old to expect birthday presents. I'm twelve today, you know, and besides he hasn't had much work lately."

"For all his bravery he spoke a bit wistfully, and Isabella suddenly ran away from him, calling breathlessly over her shoulder: "Watch me!" which was needless, as Columbus always watched her when she was near. She disappeared into a tiny hen coop and when she reappeared her eyes danced with delight. "Mother said I might have the egg," she said, "but you shall have it for your birthday present," and thrusting it into his hand she ran hastily into the house. With a pleased smile the boy walked across the yard to the opposite fence, where a kindly neighbor stood.

"A birthday present," he said, and held it up for her to see. With an answering smile she replied: "And I've just broken one which I was to put with a setting of eggs. Wouldn't you like to have me put it with the setting and let Whitey hatch it out for you? Your chicken will be brown, but the others will be white," she added. He hesitated only a second. An egg was very nice to eat, of course, but think of the joy of having a downy chicken for his very own—one he could hold and which would pick from his hand!

"I don't mind," was his diffidently spoken answer, but his neighbor read the truth in his sparkling eyes, and placed the egg with the setting.

In due time Whitey paraded proudly with her family and his neighbor agreed to keep Brownie for a while, and Columbus carried to her all the scanty table leavings; also all his spare change for the benefit of Brownie until she began laying eggs.

Then his father began taking an interest in the affair; and built a tiny coop from a packing box. Later, he bought two more hens, and the next spring, having a pronounced case of hen fever, he moved into the country where he had leased a small farm.

That was the beginning of prosperity for the family, and a few years later they were the proud owners of the farm.

All this time Columbus had been so occupied with his work that he had had no time to think of love; but when his twenty-first birthday came and he started out on his usual route with butter, eggs and poultry for sale, he met with an adventure. He was standing looking after an unusually fussy customer when a thin, pale, shabbily dressed girl came hastily from a side street. "I'd like a half dozen fresh eggs," she said. "Mother is ill, and should have the best."

Her eyes were wistful as she asked the price of the smallest fowl in sight, and the sharp eyes of Columbus had noted her sudden shrinking from him as he mentioned it, and that she held more closely her small pocketbook.

"I'll not take the fowl today," she said, and turned to go; and Columbus was really surprised to hear his own voice saying: "Wait, please!" The color in his cheeks deepened as he said: "Tis my birthday, and I've so many things to be grateful for! I've always thought that when things are that way a fellow ought to be looking around for some one to give presents to, instead of expecting them."

It was not like him to talk in this way to a stranger, but somehow he couldn't bear to have her go. If she went now he felt that he should never see her again, and so he went on talking.

"A few years ago a pretty little girl gave me my only birthday present which was an egg; and that egg changed the course of the lives of our whole family. Much for the better, too. Would you help me to pay a little of the debt which I owe to her by accepting for your mother a present of the eggs and fowl?"

The girl had been gazing at him intently, and as his pale blue eyes looked eagerly into hers, for an answer, memory whisked them both back to a lovely autumn morning wonderfully like this, when two children talked to each other over an old broken-down fence.

"Columbus!" "Isabella!" they cried out in wonder, and Columbus, still holding her hand and gazing into her eyes, discovered that for him, her face held even a greater charm than it had held in days of old.

Also he suddenly knew why he had never loved. It was simply that no one else had been so well worth loving as Isabella.

And so they were married; and the story their children love best to hear, and the story their mother loves best to tell, is the story of "Columbus and the egg."

No Accounting for Tastes.
The inhabitants of Cochis-China, prefer rotten eggs to fresh ones.

All His Work Wasted.
A musketry instructor in the north of England had spent a patient hour with a squad of recruits, explaining all about a rifle. He had impressed upon them the names of all the parts and their uses, the magazine, the bolt, the stock, the barrel, and so on. Then, flashing round on one recruit, he asked him how many cartridges he had in his rifle. Quick as thought came the reply: "Seven in 't' tin can and one up 't' spout."

Illuminating Graves.
Two days annually are observed in illuminating the graves of the Central cemetery of Vienna. This burying place, while comparatively modern, is regarded as one of the two most beautiful in the world. The illuminating ceremony occurs on Ascension day and on the anniversary of the burning of the Ring theater in 1881, when many fell victims to the flames. When stationary lamp posts of midgey size are at the sides of a plot, these are lighted, but those not equipped depend upon the bereaved loved ones who still remain to mourn them to carry lighted candles and torches as a means of illumination.

Alarm Wrist Watch.
With an alarm wrist watch is supplied an electric battery to awaken a sleeper at a designated time by sending a current through and warming a strip of metal on his arm.

Wonderful Shakespeare.
Among the English authors, Shakespeare has incomparably excelled all others. That noble extravagance of fancy, which he had in so great perfection, thoroughly qualified him to touch the weak, superstitious part of his readers' imagination and made him capable of succeeding where he had nothing to support him besides the strength of his own genius.—Addison.

Nothing Pastime.
We should never speak of anything as pastime, because it means that we are doing the act in question for the sole purpose of squandering time. Every moment of our lives should be devoted to such pursuits as will build up our bodies and minds, our spiritual and material interests, and prepare us to discern opportunity when it comes, to the end that we make our lives full of satisfaction to ourselves and a blessing to the world in which we live.—Exchange.

Vast Size of the Sun.
It may surprise many people to learn that the sun, which is by no means a large star, as stars go, could easily contain within its boundaries the entire earth and moon and also the distance between them. In fact, three systems like that consisting of earth and moon could be strung out in a row through the center of the sun, without coming within 50,000 miles of his surface on either side.

PRESIDENTIAL BATTLE WILL BE FOUGHT TWELVE STATES

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The political battleground in the presidential election will be in 12 states.

The storm centers will be in Ohio, New York, Indiana and Illinois, waxing hottest in Ohio.

Each party is reasonably certain to carry 18 states, giving the Democrats 185 electoral votes and the Republicans 195. The Democrats must have 81 more to win and the Republicans 71.

Hottest Fights

Illinois is placed in the Republican column by both Democratic and G. O. P. dopesters, but the Democrats will carry the big fight into this territory if for no other reason than to break the G. O. P. ranks and to keep the Illinois crowd out of the common battleground.

The party that can carry the three doubtful states—New York, Ohio and Indiana, can win. There are 84 electors in those three states, three more than the Democrats would need to win and 11 more than the Republicans would require, provided both parties hold the states here conceded to them. California is considered doubtful because Wilson campaigned against Hughes by less than 5,000 votes. The state is strongly Progressive. The "pep" that Hu and Johnson put into the anti-league campaign is a live factor in the on the on come in California. Colorado has gone Democratic in five of the last 6 presidential elections, but is now considered doubtful because a Republican senator and three Republican congressmen won the election in 1916. The state will be in the Democratic column, but is turned.

Progressive States.

Idaho is doubtful for the same reason that California is—dissatisfaction with Harding, who is too reactionary to suit the Progressives.

Democrats and Republicans agree that Indiana and New Jersey are exceedingly doubtful.

New Mexico was carried by Wilson and is considered doubtful for the same reason that other western states are.

On New York both parties are going to make the fight of their lives. How the state goes will depend largely on how labor "up state" swings its strength.

But Ohio, home of both candidates, will be the hottest battleground. The Republicans are claiming it by 100,000 votes. Cox has been elected governor three times and lost the state once. Wilson carried it in 1916. When Cox was elected governor in 1914, Harding was elected senator by 100,000 majority.

Other "Doubtfuls."

Both parties put Utah in the doubtful column. Wilson carried it against Hughes by 9,000 and Bryan lost it to Taft by 20,000. It is pro-league and Progressive. Washington the same.

Wyconsin is normally Republican, but is doubtful now because it isn't known what Robert LaFollette will do.

Wyoming was carried by Wilson by 8,000. The Republicans think they'll

Program for Public Health and Community Welfare Is Now Well Under Way.

Direct communities and towns of less than 2500 population benefit in a very large part by the Red Cross and Community Welfare work of the American Red Cross. Almost all of the Red Cross chapters have some health service in their territory. There is no Red Cross Rural Service.

Through the Bureau of Rural Service, the Red Cross is now out of life in the rural world and business. In this program public health instruction and general educational measures of health education and welfare are being carried on.

As a result of community organization, the Red Cross has been able to do a great deal of good for the rural community. It has been able to do a great deal of good for the rural community. It has been able to do a great deal of good for the rural community.

MOTHER OF FIRST AMERICAN SOLDIER KILLED IN FRANCE

Mrs. Alice Gresham Dodd, First War Mother Of The Nation Gives Entire Credit For Recovery Of Her Health To The Well Known Medicine, Tanlac.

The following remarkable endorsement of Tanlac was given recently by Mrs. Alice Gresham Dodd, at the Graham Memorial Home, Gavin Park, Ind., which home was presented to her by the patriotic people of Indiana as evidence of their appreciation of the services rendered to his country by her son, Corporal James D. Gresham, the first American soldier killed in France. Expressions of sympathy were received by Mrs. Dodd from all parts of the United States, and the newspapers of the country carried the story of the first "war mother."

The shock of her son's death resulted in the serious breakdown of Mrs. Dodd's health, but everyone will learn with interest and pleasure that she is now in splendid health again. When seen at her home recently she made the following statement, giving the entire credit for her recovery to the well-known medicine, Tanlac.

"After my dear boy's death I had a general breakdown in health," said Mrs. Dodd. "At first it was just indigestion. My food used to upset me and I had to diet myself very carefully, which wasn't much hardship as I lost all desire to eat. Then I had an attack of rheumatism, with severe pain in my shoulders, back and arms. Sometimes I used to suffer a great deal, and my joints would get all swollen up and stiff. I was able to do very little about the house, and at times couldn't even cook a meal. I got very nervous and restless and at night would lay awake for hours, and lost many nights' sleep as a consequence."

Tanlac is sold by all leading druggists.

MRS. ALICE GRESHAM DODD, of Gavin Park, Evansville, Ind.

"A friend of mine had received a great deal of help from Tanlac, and it was she who advised me to try it. I am so glad I did for it proved the best medicine I have ever taken. It soon gave me a good appetite and seemed to settle my stomach so that I was no longer troubled with indigestion. I don't know what it is to have rheumatic pains now, the swelling and stiffness has all gone out of my joints and I am able to do the work of the house with the greatest ease. My nerves are now steady and strong. I sleep fine at night, and I feel better in health than ever before in my life. I shall always be grateful for what Tanlac has done for me, and shall recommend it every chance I get."

Tanlac is sold by all leading druggists.

WOMAN'S INTUITION

What has become of woman's intuition, of which we used to hear so much? Surely it should be of incalculable value to her in political life. It is something like the unerring instinct which it has been said to be. And so wonder that men, if they really believe in woman's intuition, should fear her as a political antagonist. By its aid elections will no longer be guesswork till the vote is counted, as heretofore, but the intuition of woman will not lead her to select the right candidate at all times, but always to predict correctly the result of the election.

With the entrance of woman in to public affairs her intuition seems to be forgotten. Perhaps this is her penalty for changing her sphere, and perhaps the intuition was only an imaginary attribute, one of the fantastic qualities with which we are fond of deluding ourselves and others. Now that women have come into the open, as it were, the real test of the intuition is at hand. Either it must make good and show that it is something more accurate than reading of cards by a gypsy, the gyrations of the ouija board, or even the sayings of spirits through the trance of a medium. It will be an interesting experiment to note how woman's intuition will stand the test of political life or if it will stand it at all.

A Gladsome Day

By GEORGE ELMER COBB

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western Newspaper Union.)

"Whatever are you doing, Ezra?" The call came from downstairs, and Ezra Boyden, guiltily snatched up something from the little leather-covered box upon the bureau in which his wife kept odds and ends.

He had been fumbling over its contents in a hurried, suspicious way so long that Martha had challenged his unusual tardiness in reaching the breakfast table.

"Looking for something I couldn't locate right away," he explained.

"One of those troublesome collar buttons, I suppose," surmised Mrs. Boyden in her mild pleasant way, and the incident passed and Ezra was relieved, and as he got free of the house later felt in his pocket and produced a worn gold ring with an empty setting. It had held a small diamond thirty years back when he had given it to Martha. She had never taken it off her finger through twenty-nine years of wedded life until the little sparkling stone was missing one day. She had grieved over the loss, but the most persistent search failed to disclose any trace of the diamond.

"Poor thing!" soliloquized Ezra. She took it to heart terribly, although she said little. Martha always looked upon a diamond ring as a sort of certificate of respectability. Then, too, she knew it meant a lot of scraping and saving to get it in the old days.

These days had not been any better as to worldly gain for the faithful plodding pair. Many a time Ezra had thought of trying to replace the lost diamond, but could never quite spare the necessary amount. Now, however, he hummed a cheery little snatch of a song and smiled to himself.

"Martha hasn't mentioned it," he soliloquized, "because she is afraid that I can't do much for her, but this is our thirty-fifth wedding anniversary. Well, I'm glad I can provide a little surprise for her. With our two married girls living three states away and Randal tossing on some distant ocean, or wandering in Asia, or worse, Martha wants something to break the monotony. I'm going to squeeze out enough to fix up that ring if it does make me hard up for a year to come. I wish I could make it a piano, too. How Martha longs for one, and the other night just set me all stirred up."

Upon that "other night" at a neighbor's for perhaps the first time in twenty years Martha had been lured to touch the ivory keys. She was all a tremble as she quivered over a faint, frightened rendition of "Love's Old Sweet Dream." How the longing notes revived the past with Ezra! What a delicious flush crossed the gentle refined face of Martha! As he thought of the old cheery parlor organ at home with its wheezy bellows and broken keys he almost cried.

Ezra dropped into the village jewelry store. Its proprietor was seated at a table in the rear room upon which a stranger, suggesting a traveling salesman, was exhibiting some stores spread out upon a sheet of delicate white tissue paper. Mr. Drake came out promptly behind the showcase.

"I want you to fix up this ring with a moderate-priced diamond," spoke Ezra and went over its history. Then, the flood gates of feeling wide open, he desecrated tenderly upon Martha and her piano playing. "What will a stone cost me," he questioned. "I'll pay a little down and the balance along."

"Hold on—don't you know me?" The stranger, rubbing his coat sleeve across his eyes, came forward. He confronted Ezra, who gave a great gulp and fairly lurched into the arms of the other.

"Randal!" he cried. "Oh! what will mother say! My boy! my boy! Back home and safe, and on such a day—our thirty-fifth wedding anniversary." "Yes, father, it's me, and I've got half a hundred diamonds for you to pick from. I was just trying to sell some. First, though, we'll select the very finest one for mother. They represent my luck in the Transvaal district. And about a piano, now fix things up right!"

Just before noon a messenger brought Mrs. Boyden a small package. It contained the old ring adorned with a dazzling, glowing diamond.

Ezra's breath nearly left her. "From your loving husband," read an accompanying note. "Will bring a friend home to supper with me," and Martha sat down and cried.

Later there arrived a piano, and as Martha opened it a card lying upon the keyboard read: "All yours—from a friend."

Just at dusk Ezra and Randal neared home. Through the lighted parlor window they could note wife and mother seated at the piano, a picture of mature grace and beauty.

Her face was radiant. To the sweet notes of "Love's Old Sweet Dream" the diamond glow shot hither and thither. She came to the door as Randal knocked. The ringing, glad-some cry of a woman gleamed rang out as she clasped the stranger who had come to dinner in her loving arms.

carry it this time, but they do not count it certain.

If the Republicans hold their conceded strength, and fail to carry Ohio, they will have to get New York, California, Colorado, Wisconsin, New Mexico and Utah to win. Then if the Democrats should steal Illinois from them they would have to take in addition Idaho, Washington and Wyoming of the doubtful state to get over.

It is not necessary for either party to have New York to win.

Famous Small Bells.
The source of the dinner table "small bells" is not always traceable. Some come from old churches, where they have served as altar bells, especially those that have Latin quotations on the medallions on the sides of their cup-shaped gongs. Those that represent famous personages are after the fashion of the period in which their deeds made them familiar figures in the public eye. Some are patterned after the bells in certain famous chimelms—like the copies of bells from the famous Miller collection in California.

BETTER BABIES

The formula for better babies has passed from coast to coast, and taken form hold of American mothers. Few women realize how much the ill health of the mother influences the unborn child, both physically and mentally. Women who suffer from hysterical pains, backache, nervousness, mental depression, headaches, etc., should rely on Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, which for nearly forty years has been standard remedy for these ailments.—Adv.

The Movie Kiss.

The endurance test movie kiss, popularly known as a clench, is not properly a kiss, but a form of adhesion closely resembling vulcanizing.—Robert Quillen in the Saturday Evening Post.

Loyalty

The Charleston News and Courier draws attention to a recent article by Irvin Cobb, in which he tells how a vice financier was once trailed all day and half the night by a group of reporters he was trying to elude. When at last they had run him down and gotten from him the information they were after, he halted them as they were leaving.

"I have answered your questions," he said. "I would like now to have you answer one for me: what is it in your work which calls forth such zeal and loyalty as you gentlemen have displayed in this affair today and as I have known you to display again and again? Why is it that I cannot command such zeal and such loyalty of the men who work for me, no matter how much I pay them?"

The Courier adds the experience of David A. Littlefield of the New York Evening Post. Mr. Littlefield had gone up in a big navy "blimp" to report the cup race. Something went wrong and the officers in charge hurried the blimp back into the air to try and correct the trouble. They failed and the blimp began to fall from a height of 3,000 feet. Disaster seemed certain, but in the crisis it was not of himself or his own safety that Mr. Littlefield thought. His whole attention was given to hurrying in a wireless bulletin of what was taking place; and when the blimp finally struck the sea he succeeded, at the risk of his life, in taking a picture of the collapsing bag with his pocket camera.

All of which sets the writer to wondering what it is that prompts the newspaper reporter to such unflinching loyalty to his paper. There is really no mystery about it. The true reporter places his job above all else. For him the whole issue of his paper is a failure if his part is not up to mark—if he has missed his "story" or has fallen down on some essential of it. Few reporters remain reporters all their lives. Their sense of duty, their loyalty, enterprise and energy almost invariably call them eventually into more lucrative lines of business or, as in the case of Harding and Cox, win for them prominence in politics.

The reporter's sometimes spectacular achievements, as a result of these attributes, bring him to the attention of the public. Others, countless thousands of them, are just as like him they are the men who get the well as actual location of a road along in the world. Loyalty, intelligence, energy and persistence win in any line of endeavor. The reporter has no monopoly on these virtues, but he is a fine example of them in everyday practice.

OLDTIMERS DISCUSS BIRTH OF CURWENSVILLE AS TOWN

Yesterday afternoon while seated out on the job did not ask how much among a number of the old sages of money he was to receive as a day's Curwensville the question arose as to pay, but always asked the foreman how old the town is and when was it how many "jiggers" he was to receive during the day's hour of labor. The argument became a very heated one. Now if we are to judge from the age and some of the aged ones who had lived here all of their lives, some 80 odd years assumed the statement that it was a town then and long before their time. A little research among what records can be obtained we learn that the town was known by the name of Curwin or Curwensville some time prior to the building of the old Erie and Philadelphia pike, which as near as we can gather, was erected or at least a portion of it, by the father of Hiram Leech who was then a mere lad and acted in the capacity of what was known in the early day as a "jigger boss" or one whose duty it was to supply the men with water and whiskey, carrying a jug of each in being during the period of years. On the other hand, a man when he lived, 1777 to 1800, at the time of the town's birth, the old Susquehanna house was built and doing a most flourishing business to wayfarers who had occasion to travel the newly made pike extending from Erie to Philadelphia and the only thoroughfare by which goods were transferred and distributed to merchants between those cities on the way going west and conveying loads of iron ore on their return eastward. Much of the history of the people who lived along its route and did business as well as actual location of a road in itself has been lost and it is only by memory of those who have passed the ages of three score and ten that we can obtain anything like an accurate picture and anything like an accurate data of this now ancient piece of what was then known as the great eastern trail across the mountains. Nevertheless, Curwensville is a very old town.

You can do as you please in Russia but this is just what the trouble is. For you can't do as you please in America.

PENNSYLVANIA FORESTS

Short Talks On Forestry And The Lumber Situation

By Gifford Pinchot, Chief Forester of Pennsylvania
No 1 The Bare Facts

The one word which properly describes the facts surrounding the forest and lumber situation in Pennsylvania is "bare."

Wasteful lumbering and fire—lack of attention to the tree-growing lands of the State—have made bare millions of Pennsylvania acres which by all that is reasonable should be growing one crop of trees after another, for that is all they can be made to grow. Pennsylvania has 5,000,000 acres fit only for growing trees—an area greater than the entire state of New Jersey. It used to be covered with the richest forest. At present it is producing little or nothing for the use and benefit of our people. An area that produces nothing is a desert. This is Pennsylvania's desert.

The Pennsylvania Desert costs the people of the State $100,000,000 a year—twice as much as it costs to run the State Government.

It works out like this. We use in Pennsylvania about 2,300,000,000 feet of lumber each year. We might grow nearly all of it at home, but we have been letting the fires run instead. As a result we are paying not less than $25,000,000 a year in freight charges on lumber brought into the State. This freight bill grows and will soon exceed $40,000,000 every 12 months.

In addition, and apart from the freight, we pay $50,000,000 more each year for the 1,700,000,000 feet of lumber we import.

This is nearly pure loss, but it does not tell the whole story. The other losses due to forest destruction and the closing or removal of woodworking industries are very great and there is besides the loss from floods, the loss of business to the business men of the State, the loss to newspapers through the excessive cost of newsprint which might just as well have been produced at home, the loss of population driven to other States to find employment in lumbering, the loss of fish and game, the loss of summer resort business, and other losses, which combined we may very conservatively place at $25,000,000 a year. The total is one hundred millions.

The direct damage from fire is the smallest of all—probably less than half a million—because outside of farmers' woodlots there is so little valuable timber left to burn. It is not what the fires burn up, but what they prevent from growing, that truly measures the damage they cause.

Taking it altogether, we are well within the truth in estimating that the Pennsylvania Desert keeps out of the pockets of our people and puts into their cost of living, not less than $100,000,000 a year.

Until 1907 Pennsylvania was a lumber exporting State. Then we started importing lumber. Now we import three times as much as our forests produce.

From 2,300,000,000 board feet produced in Pennsylvania forests in 1899 there was a drop to 500,000,000 board feet estimated for 1919.

Tree cutting goes on without regard to growth of trees. This means forest devastation. It means neglect of our true economic interests that borders on the criminal. For this condition Pennsylvania is to blame—Pennsylvania in its capacity as a Commonwealth of intelligent people.

The remedy lies in renewed protection and care of our forests and in true statesmanship on the part of our lawmakers and law administrators.

Longfellow in Westminster Abbey. Among the memorial tablets or statues in Westminster abbey stands a bust of Longfellow, the only American who has been so honored.

We'll Say They Are. "Maama," said a five-year-old Charles looking up from his story books, "what does this story mean about a great-grandmother? Ain't all grandmothers great?"

Relic of Long-Past Age. While cutting peat in the northern headwater area, the shepherds unearthed a horn which may have belonged to Bos primigenius or B. longifrons, the wild oxen that ranged over Britain from the glacial age to near historic times. It was found at a depth of four feet from the surface, and the shepherds also averred that there was a small patch of brown hair attached, which is quite possibly, as the peat would act as a preservative. —London Mail.

Largest Membership. The French Legion of Honor has a much larger membership than any other prominent order.

Proper Care of Tools. All saws should be wrapped up, otherwise they will rust and rust kills their cutting edges. The correct way to wrap saws is to use a wooden cloth well oiled. The careful chaffeur wraps all polished tools and puts them in the tool box and keeps them away from the storage battery, the fumes of which will quickly rust them.

X-Rays in Tuberculosis. In the finished positive photograph, the lungs of a normal person show a white, this representing the air in the cells of the lungs. If the lung is diseased—as in pneumonia—it will show dark, i. e., the cells being overfilled with matter. Tuberculosis is diagnosed by the spotted, mottled appearance of the affected lungs.

BRANDS LIGHTING MANUFACTURERS AS "SHARPERS"

A Bradford Township farmer has been having some difficulty with a "thin" elm lamp lighting plant, and he has carried his case to The Rural New Yorker for advice. The following letter from that magazine fully explains the nature of the case and this gentleman request their publication for the benefit of local farmers.

Dear Sir,
Answering your recent letter, the Night Commander Lighting Company, 1200 N. Michigan, I think the worst mistake we have ever run into is the "thin" elm lamp lighting plant.

Some six years ago the firm operated with a "thin" elm lamp in New York State and the methods of then agent in cutting order were anything but legitimate and fair. We are enclosing you one or two clippings published in The Rural New Yorker regarding their operation at the time.

We thank the story the agent told you that other were buying the same plant at the "key-stone $8.00" as a "bargain" price. However, a house, we have no faith at any rate in any representation which the agent of this concern may make, while we have had no complaint about the generator itself, and we are inclined to think that the generator is as good as any. We, however, do not approve of the methods of any of the active lighting manufacturers, and we do not carry the advertising of any of them.

Very truly yours,
THE RURAL NEW YORKER,
W. M. F. DILLON.

Dear Sir:
Answering your recent letter with further reference to the Night Commander Lighting Company, the "thin" elm lamp lighting plant, which was working in New York State a few years ago, was to go to a farmer and tell him that they would sell him a lighting plant on the condition that he would receive a commission on all the sales made in the vicinity, which would be sufficient to pay for his outfit. They would go to the next farmer and tell him the same thing and many contracts were secured on this fraudulent basis.

The farmer in the vicinity of Mexico, New York, who was deceived in his respect, combined both interest and refused to accept the plant or pay for them. The Night Commander Lighting Company made a profit of $100.00 and about 1000 ft. of wire when the case was called for and one of the farmers was called by the Night Commander Lighting Company to make an emergency and the case was returned.

We do not know if the generator of the concern are higher in price than others and so far as we know they are giving just as good satisfaction. The J. B. Calk Company of New York City, is the most prominent manufacturer of the lighting plants, but the method of their salesmen, who are a bad lot, that of the Night Commander Lighting Company are not above criticism and we have had many complaints about them that we have referred to the Calk Company advertising also.

If you have signed a contract with the Night Commander Lighting Company for one of their plants we assume you will have to take it or prepare to defend a suit. It is, of course, a question for each individual farmer to decide for himself whether an electric plant would be more desirable but we have found the methods of the electric lighting many farmers entirely honorable and above board.

Very truly yours,
THE RURAL NEW YORKER,
W. M. F. DILLON.

Extracting Broken Screw. A tool for extracting broken set screws is described by the Scientific American as resembling a drill with a coarse left-handed thread. A hole is drilled into what remains of the screw of bolt, the extractor is inserted, and as it turns it exerts a reverse influence on the broken screw and backs the latter out on its own thread.

WILL CONVEY IN CLEVELAND

Call issued for Second National Convention of Legion to Be Held September 27-29.

The call for the second national convention of the American Legion, to be held in Cleveland September 27, 28 and 29, and which approximately 3,500 delegates and alternates, in addition to some 10,000 visiting Legionnaires and their families are expected to attend, was issued from Legion national headquarters recently.

Representation in the convention will be by state departments, each department being entitled to five delegates and an additional delegate for each 1,000 members fully paid up by that department according to the books of the national treasurer at the close of business August 28, 1920. Each department also is entitled to a number of alternates equal to the number of its delegates, but alternates will have power to vote only in the absence of the regular delegates.

The convention is called, the call recites, for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year, amending the national constitution and for the transaction of such other business as may be brought before it in conformity with the national constitution.

The term of office of the present national executive committee will expire with the adjournment of the convention and the new committee will convene within twenty-four hours after this adjournment. Members of both old and new committees are expected to attend this meeting, and one to be held by the old committee, probably September 25.

Each delegation may be accompanied to the convention by such members of the Legion and their families as it sees fit to invite. As far as space will permit, tickets to the convention will be issued to each department delegation for the convenience of these guests.

The convention committee, of which C. C. Chambers, 1729 East Twenty-second street, Cleveland, O., is chairman, has charge of arrangements for the convention.

Many Ranchers in Band. Revellie Post No. 14 of Lawellen, Neb., is made up mostly of ranchers who travel many miles to attend post meetings.

Superstitions of the Great.

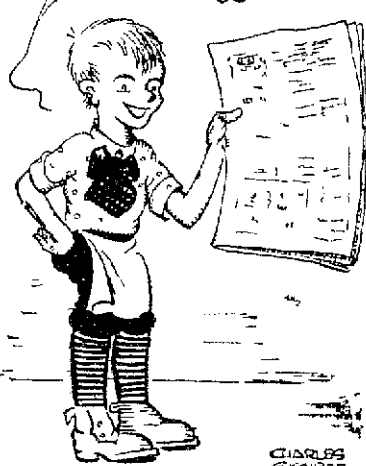

Dr. Samuel Johnson, so it is reported, would never enter a room left foot foremost and brave Marshal Gue was in terror at the sight of not Peter the Great was in a tremor of fear if he had to cross a bridge, and Byron turned pale if he spilled salt at the table.

How Bridal Veil Originated.

The bridal veil is said to have originated in the ancient custom of performing the marriage ceremony under a square piece of cloth, held over the bride couple to conceal the blushes of the bride. At the marriage of a widow it was not used.

Willing to Take a Chance.

Mother was trying to live her small son a dose of castor oil and after much coaxing and pinching he did not swallow it. She said to the band: "I try to put it in his ear, we will just let it use in his ear." Billy's face brightened and he said: "Daddy, let the man in. I'll try to swallow it."

WHAT IS A PUBLIC HEALTH NURSING SERVICE

your every assistance especially as to housing conditions. Get her pleasantly located and do not ask or expect her to live any place where you would not care to live yourself. Here is a program of what you should do for her:

1. Meet your nurse.
 2. Introduce her to town people, either individually or at mass meetings.
 3. Surround her with pleasant living conditions.
 4. See that the work gets the necessary publicity and provide for her transportation need.
- Her hours of service should be from 8 to 5.
- Arrange for the type of call for her service.
- It is the duty of the committee to see that the nurse is not imposed upon.

She should have her Sundays off and one-half day weekly, together with one month's vacation on salary salary $125 per month and mileage.

She should have an office and office house, with someone responsible for calls.

Records should be carefully kept for their statistical value.

Now let us get back to your county service. You pretty well understand public home nursing in a general way. This is a chapter service—including branches and auxiliaries. Mr. Reed has given the geography of your county a great deal of thought. She has made a careful study of the entire territory and decided upon what we think is the best sub-division of your part of the county. There are to be 9 sections, including Clearfield.

Plan for Service.

The nurse belongs to all of us, so we have tried to figure out just how she can best serve all of you—what type of nursing would be most advantageous to you?

For a county service we feel school nursing is most satisfactory phase of nurse. It is more far reaching. With the county divided into nine sections it will allow 4 to 6 weeks in each section and the visiting of all schools.

Right here arises the question of transportation, and the proper handling of emergency calls.

And again I want to impress upon you that the fundamental factor is a proper organization of this type is team work. Neither the N. A. C. nor the nurse must stand on the dignity of their position. They should pool their knowledge and discuss freely together all problems as they arise. A frank interchange of ideas, honesty of approach, and loyalty to each other are essential to the development and growth of a public home nursing service. A house divided against itself is bound to fall.

The nurse needs a substantial backing—moral support—she does not want to be coddled but a little human sympathy understanding and encouragement help a lot in this and every phase of public work.

It is slow, difficult pioneer work but you are bound to get results if you work together with the right spirit and determination!

Cleaning Books.

Most family libraries are disfigured by one or two once lovely volumes in impractical bindings of pale silk or white leather dimmed by grime. Art gum or a sort of kneaded eraser may clean them. If not, try fine powdered pumice, lightly applied with a clean chamolite. This is what picture dealers use to clean the margins of old prints. It roughens the surface less than rubber.

Temperature Important.

Lead is said to act like steel at ordinary temperatures in liquid air. It will serve as a helical spring, for example. The behavior of soft non-elastic metals is very interesting. It shows how very important temperature is. Just as iron is soft and malleable at a high red color, so lead is dull and soft at ordinary temperatures, for it is well on its way to be melted.

Removing Grease Spots.

To remove grease spots from carpets mix fuller's earth and magnesia together in equal proportions by scraping and pounding. Form this into a paste with hot water and spread on the spots. The next day brush it off and, if necessary, repeat the process.

Old Man Economy
says:

Just for the fun of it, I made a little visit over town today into the homes of our best people, and what do you suppose I found? Just this—to be happy you must be Electrical. I found the happiest families are those that do things with the newest electrical appliances.

Why were they so happy over it? Because Electrical Appliances—for one thing—mean saving money. And what could bring more happiness these days than a full family till?
